ALL REPUBLICANS LOOK ALIKE TO TAFT

President Sees Neither 'Progressives' Nor 'Regulars'—He Regards All as Merely Republicans.

BEVERLY, Sept. 15.—President Taft hereafter will draw no distinction between insurgent and regular Republicans in the distribution of Federal patronage. This was made clear to-day in a letter from the President to certain of the Iowa insurgent leaders, which was made public at the Summer White House by Secretary Norton. In taking this course the President believes that he is but bowing to the wishes of the majority of the people. His letter says:

Your letters of the 9th are at hand and I have delayed replying until after the primary elections. The President directs me to express to you and to your friends his deep appreciation of the work which you have done, and the powerful assistance which you have extended to the administration from the beginning—an assistance that has contributed much to the legislative and other successes which have been secured.

The President recognizes that your efforts have been wholly disinterested, that you have fought stoutly and generously for what you believed to be his interest and the welfare and success of the party.

Primary Ends Fight.

White Republican legislation pending in Congress was opposed by certain Republicans the President felt it to be his duty to the party and to the country to withhold federal patronage from certain Senators and Congressmen who seemed to be in opposition to the administration's efforts to carry out the promises of the party platform. That attitude, however, ended with the primary elections and nominating conventions which have now been held and in which the voters have had opportunity to declare themselves. The people have spoken and as the party faces the Fall election the question must be settled by the publishings of every shade of opinion whether the differences of the last session shall be perpetuated or shall be forgotten.

He recognizes the danger that in certain cases expressions of feelings were an impediment to make it difficult in some instances for factions to come together and work loyally for the party, but, as he stated in his letter to the Republican Congressional Committee, he believes it can be done and should be. The President is confident that you will yourself meet your local and State situation in this spirit and that you will write your friends and ask them to do likewise.

Bars All Discrimination.

The President feels that the value of federal patronage has been greatly exaggerated and that the refusal to grant it has probably been more useful to the men affected than the appointments would have been. In the preliminary skirmishes in certain States like Wisconsin and Illinois elsewhere, he was willing in the interest of what the leaders believed would feed a party success to make some discriminations; but the President has concluded that it is his duty now to treat all Republican Congressmen and senators alike, without any distinction.

He will now follow the usual rule in Republican Congressional districts and States and follow the recommendations made by Republican Congressmen and Senators of whatever shade of political opinion, only requiring that the men recommended shall be, in his mind, the most competent and the best men for the particular offices.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES D. NORTON,
Secretary to the President.

President 53 To-day.

In a quiet unostentatious way President Taft to-day celebrated his fifty-third birthday. He was born in Cincinnati, September 15, 1857. A number of telegrams, expressing good will and many more birthdays, were received from dignitaries of Nation, States and cities, and from foreign government stitches at Washington, which were answered.

He went out on the links again to-day with Judge Moore, a new opponent, and Captain Archibald Butt.

SEIZE 26 IN TICKET SWINDLE

Twenty Italians, steerageways who were discovered hiding in the hold of the steamship Canopic as the big White Star liner was steaming down the harbor ahead of the tugs, and after being severely ironed, were transferred to a tug and brought back to this city, are to-day arraigned in the Charlestown District Court on a charge of frenzy.

The police are searching for a prominent North End Italian who, it is alleged, filched the steerageways out of more than $400 and who is believed to be one of a number of persons in a conspiracy to defraud the steamship company.

The police informed the magistrate in writeless of their suspicions as to the presence of the banker on board and it is believed that if he is there that he will be hauled over to the authorities when the ship reaches the other side.

Twenty men who held bogus tickets landed from the Canopic yesterday were arraigned in the Charlestown District Court to-day and charged with conspiracy to defraud by representatives of the White Star Steamship Company. They were held for trial next Wednesday.

Each of the men pleaded not guilty. They declared that they bought the tickets they held, paying from $20 to $22 each for the tickets, with the understanding that this represented half-fare, but that they would be allowed to work out the other half of the passage on the trip.

Two Other Arrests.

Digging into the case, the police of Station 1 made two arrests to-day in connection with it. The prisoners were Mario Ferlazzo of No. 271 North street, who is said to be connected with a bank, and Salvatore Pizzano of No. 132 Salem street. Those men were picked up at the instance of the police of Station 15, Charlestown.

The Company Determined.

Frederick O. Houghton, passenger agent of the White Star Line, said to-day:

"We are going to push these Italians to the limit. We are going to prosecute everybody connected with this trouble. We will try to punish conviction in every case if possible. We have requested the police to arrest anybody however far remote their connection may be with the conspiracy.

"It was unfortunate that these men were not discovered sooner. Had this been done it would have been easier to fix a case of the manslaughter before boarding the steamer. None of the men had had anything to eat or drink for twenty-four hours, during which time they were cooped up in the narrow compartment with barely any light and but little air. All were nearly famished.

When asked what they were doing on board the steamer each of them produced a manilla envelope, which they presented as their tickets. A few pointed questions and the part the steamer had played in the transaction was revealed. The liner was stopped on the high seas by wireless.

Each of the prisoners was securely ironed, then all were lowered into the tug and taken to the Hoosac Docks, where the patrol wagon was waiting to take them to the station house.

WESTERN GOFERS AHEAD

CLYDE PARK, Brookline, Sept. 15.—Western players were leading at the finish of the first eighteen holes of the third round of match play in the national amateur golf tournament for the championship of the United States at the Country club to-day.

The standing at the end of the first eighteen holes was:

W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburg, 3 up on H. H. Wilder of Boston.

Warren K. Wood, Chicago, 2 up on J. C. Anderson of Boston.

W. R. Tuckerman of Steelebridge, 1 up on H. Weber of Toledo.

Charles A. Evans, Chicago, 6 up on Fred Herreshoff, New York.

The surprise of the game at that period was the long lead "Chick" Evans, the Westerner, had obtained over Fred Herreshoff, the Metropolitan champion.

The cards, end of first eighteen holes of match play, third round, were:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Wilder | 5 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 3 | 5 | 4 | 5 | 5 | 40 |
| Fownes | 4 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 3 | 7 | 3 | 5 | 5 | 42 |
| Wilder | 3 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 38—78 |
| Fownes | 4 | 5 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 4 | 40—82 |
| Anderson | 5 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 3 | 4 | 4 | 4 | 4 | 40 |
| Wood | 6 | 4 | 5 | 3 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 5 | 6 | 42 |
| Anderson | 6 | 4 | 3 | 4 | 6 | 5 | 5 | 4 | 5 | 42—82 |
| Wood | 5 | 3 | 4 | 3 | 4 | 4 | 4 | 4 | 4 | 35—75 |
| Weber | 6 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 41 |
| Tuckerman | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 5 | 6 | 4 | 5 | 47 |
| Weber | 5 | 5 | 5 | 5 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 5 | 41—82 |
| Tuckerman | 4 | 5 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 3 | 4 | 3 | 36—85 |
| Evans | 6 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 7 | 4 | 7 | 6 | 39 |
| Herreshoff | 5 | 5 | 4 | 7 | 4 | 5 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 43 |
| Evans | 4 | 4 | 5 | 3 | 3 | 4 | 4 | 5 | 5 | 37—76 |
| Herreshoff | 4 | 6 | 5 | 4 | 5 | 5 | 5 | 6 | 4 | 38—85 |

Herreshoff of New York was off his game in a way that disappointed his friends.

W. R. Tuckerman, the Steelebridge player, put up a plucky game. At one time he was 5 down to Weber of Toledo, but at the end of the morning round, he held his opponent 1 up.

As was expected, the Anderson-Wood match proved one of the most popular of the day. At the first hole Anderson negotiated a long putt for a 5 to Wood's 6. Anderson 1 up.

The Westerner won the second hole, due to Anderson's approach being laid up against a tree. The Boston player was down in 5 to Wood's 4. Match even.

Lucky at Third Hole.

Anderson was lucky at the third hole in that his second shot, after going into the trees, bounded out onto the edge of the green. He overran his putt fifteen feet, but was the applause of the gallery by holding his putt for a 4. Wood, who was five feet from the hole on his third, missed a four and Anderson was 1 up.

In the fourth hole the Western player laid his second shot within three feet of the cup and was down in 3 to Anderson's 4. Match even.

Again, on the fifth hole, Wood's approach was perfect. After running up his second shot to within a foot of the cup he was down in 4. Anderson taking a 5. Wood 1 up.

The sixth and seventh holes were halved in 4's and 3's, both players making beautiful shots. Wood 1 up.

On the eighth hole (380 yards) Anderson's approach was dead to the hole and won it in a 4 to a 5 and squared the match.

Anderson in a Ditch.

On the ninth hole Wood topped his drive while Anderson was in a ditch on his second. A beautiful fashie shot put him on the green in 5, but Wood laid him a dead stymie and the hole was halved in 6's. Match even.

On the short tenth hole Anderson was short of the thirteen green, while Wood was just shy. Anderson tried twice to get out of the ditch to the bunker, but failed. Wood won the hole in 3's and was 1 up.

Anderson won the next hole, due to Wood driving out of bounds. Anderson 4, Wood 5. Match even.

On the twelfth hole (400 yards) Anderson was on the green in nine and holed a 15-foot putt for a 3, Wood was 4, Anderson one up.

The Boston player then went completely off his game and was in every bunker for the next four holes. He was three down at the sixteenth hole.

The seventeenth was halved in 4's. Anderson, with two beautiful shots to the green, ran down his putt for a three on the home hole amidst applause from the gallery. Wood played a four. The Western player had at the end of the morning round, two up.

MISS DOROTHY KANE WINS TENNIS CUP

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 15.—Miss Dorothy aKne wone the silver cup and honors in the women's handicap singles at the Newport Casino to-day, by defeating Mrs. William H. Coffin in a three-set match, 6-2, 6-8 and 6-2.

RACE FOR $3,000 IN THE AIR

HARVARD AVIATION FIELD, Squantum, Sept. 15.—Under smiling skies the Harvard-Boston aviation meet, in many respects the most successful one of the kind ever held in the world, closes to-day, and it is expected that the patrons will witness some of the most dazzling flights of the "flying days" event.

The most spectacular contest of the day will be between Grahame-White and Glenn H. Curtiss. They are to race 5½ miles for a $3,000 cup. The Englishman will use his Herlot monoplane and the American his eight-cylinder biplane. Grahame-White has made this distance, three times around the course, in 6 minutes 1.35 seconds. It is expected this time will be smashed this afternoon.

Johnstone After Record.

Johnstone, one of the Wright aviators, also is out to make a new world's record in bomb throwing to-day. He will add a realistic touch to his last local appearance by using slightly explosive bombs on the miniature battleship target. His efforts will be seconded by Brookins, the star sky jockey of the meet, whose aerial stunts at Squantum have never been equalled on this side of the water since heavier-than-air flying machines came into existence.

It was declared to-day that the Harvard Aeronautical Society would clear from $25,000 to $30,000 from the meet. The receipts for the nine official days of the meet were about $130,000 and the expenses footed up about $120,000.

Glidden to Offer Trophy.

Charles J. Glidden announced to-day that he would offer a trophy for the encouragement of aero tours just like he offers for automobile tours and that the next aero tour would start next year from the Harvard grounds.

Miss Katherine Reed, the Washington school teacher who took a $150 ride with Grahame-White yesterday, although she thought she was going to get $5,000 worth, was back on the field this afternoon with the rest of money. She said she was going up again.

Charles M. Ocumpaugh, treasurer of the Rochester Driving Club, was on the ground this afternoon to get the aviators to attend the Rochester Fair next month and course in a flight from Rochester to Detroit for $10,000, $2,000 to the aviator in addition.

Curtiss yesterday tried out his new machine, the Harvard, and the Hudson flier. It is probable that he will use the Harvard since its engine, the 65 horsepower, 8-cylinder machine, belonging to Starling W. Burgess is supposed to have a stronger thrust than the Curtiss engine.

In the trial for speed yesterday, Curtiss was over fifteen seconds longer in covering the course than the best time made by Grahame-White. For that reason, it is probable that the Englishman will win. The expert driving of a machine will enter largely into the contest, however, and there are many who contend that the

CUSTOMS HOUSE OFFICERS SEIZE $22,000 NECKLACE

Upon her arrival in New York to-day on the liner Adriatic from Europe, Mrs. Betty Faulkner Chapman, divorced wife of T. Irvin Chapman, the Brookline man at present representative of the Standard Oil in Japan, was ordered searched by the customs men, and a pearl necklace valued at $22,000, a large quantity of jewelry that she had secreted about her person and a number of her gowns were seized and sent to the public stores. Mrs. Chapman, after the seizure, was ordered to appear before Deputy Collector of the Port Smythe in the customhouse.

DECLARED ONLY $100 WORTH OF GOODS.

When the customs men boarded the liner at Quarantine they examined Mrs. Chapman's declaration and found that she had declared $100 worth of dutiable goods. She had five trunks and a number of smaller pieces of baggage.

Chief Deputy Surveyor John Raeslaewics, acting Deputy Surveyor John O'Connor and Inspector Heelm were at the pier when Mrs. Chapman's trunks were unloaded from the liner. They immediately opened the trunks and began a search. From one trunk they took out two beautiful gowns of various colors which the customs men declared were made in Europe and which had not been declared. In another trunk they found four other gowns, attached to which was a belt of foreign make. Besides these other gowns and wearing apparel of apparent foreign make, were found.

These gowns Mrs. Chapman declared, were purchased by her in this country. After questioning Mrs. Chapman, the deputy surveyor summoned Inspectress Walsh and ordered Mrs. Chapman to accompany her on board the Adriatic.

Searched in the Stateroom.

Mrs. Chapman was taken to her state room and there searched by the inspectress. For a moment's search the pearl necklace valued at $22,000 was found secreted about the person of Mrs. Chapman. A few minutes more of search brought forth a large number of pieces of jewelry, the value of which was estimated at many hundreds of dollars, none of which, the customs men declared, had been entered in her in her declaration The woman inspector communicated with Deputy Surveyor Raeskiewics and he ordered the necklace and the jewelry sent to the Custom House. Mrs. Chapman, considerably agitated, was ordered to appear before the deputy collector to explain why she had not declared the jewelry found on her. All of the jewelry, the customs men averred, was purchased abroad.

Mrs. Chapman's mother, who went to New York from this city to meet her daughter was at the pier. When told of the seizure of her daughter's gowns, she declared that they had been purchased in New York, previous to her daughter's sailing abroad.

Engagement Report Explained.

In discussing her reported engagement to the young son of Baron Rothschild, Mrs. Chapman, after her trunks and jewelry had been seized, offered the following explanation.

"Mr. Rothschild and myself attended the grand prix races. We were unmolested by a young and inquisitive reporter, who wanted to know if we were engaged. Mr. Rothschild was considerably agitated at the question. To help him out a fib difficulty I leaned over and whispered in his ear.

"Tell him we are."

"Now that is how the story originated. Just a joke you see. We are not engaged. I have no intention of marrying. At least not just yet."

Mrs. Chapman is well known in Boston society. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Faulkner of Dorchester. She went on the stage and was successful as an actress appearing in one of David Belasco's companies.

Noted As a Model.

She was greatly in demand as a model by photographers because of her beauty. Her marriage to Chapman was unhappy and five years ago she was granted a divorce. Chapman had sailed with his mother for Japan after a wedded life of six years, without leaving any provision for the support of his wife and child. She returned to the stage after the divorce, and has been very successful both in America and Europe.

Recently she has been in Europe and her engagement to Baron James Ormund de Rothschild was reported. She visited the races at the Grand Prix at Paris and was seen with in ery where.

Both Boston teams play the opening games of series to-day, the Red Sox clashing with the White Sox in Chicago, and the Doves battling the St. Louis Cardinals in a double-header here.

To-day's results of American League games may cause quite a shift in the standing. The Red Sox are now tied with the Highlanders, who have been hard opponents to shake off.

If the Red Sox win to-day's game, and the Highlanders should lose to St. Louis, Bowman's men will be safe on third money wagon sent, provided and there's where the cub comes in—Detroit loses to the Athletics.

For a victory by the Tigers to-day and defeat by both the Red Sox and Highlanders will put Cunningham's men in second place, Detroit is but a point behind the Boston and New York teams now. If Boston loses and Detroit and New York both win, it will be fourth place for Donovan's men to-night.

Although the majority of the fans are keeping a close watch on the American League battle, yet the local rooters are not forgetting the fact that Harper's double bill on the cards at the Walpole street ground this afternoon. Hennie Lake and Rensmians are out to cop both games.

The Dove pitchers have had an enforced rest for several days, together with the other men of the team, and will are in good condition for entering games this afternoon. It is probable that Frock will be the choice for first Cardinals in one of the games, with Curtis, or Brown in the second. Lush is the choice for the Cardinals.

In the Windy City Charley Smigh will probably hand them over for the Speed Boys. Cicotte or "Doc" White as his brother club artist.

TARIFF SCORED BY O'CONNELL

Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell held an open-air rally to-day noon at the Pore River Works, Quincy. It was well attended, and Congressman O'Connell was heered to spike in part as follows:

"The most convincing proof of the heavy burdens imposed by the Payne tariff bill is exhibited in just such an audience as is gathered from the employes of the Fore River Shipyards.

"Here is a great enterprise dependent in a great degree for its success upon the operation of the tariff bill. The imposition of heavy rates has made it a difficult matter for this company to meet the competition of other organizations. The consequence has been that, because of this and other reasons, the wages of the men have not been increased, and as a matter of fact are very low.

"While the wages of the different employes of the Fore River Works have not been increased, the cost of living has jumped up enormously."

BRYCE OPENS THE WAY FOR RECIPROCITY

BEVERLY, Sept. 15.—Formal steps looking to the opening of negotiations for a reciprocity treaty with Canada have been taken by President Taft, who has secured the consent of the British Ambassador, Mr. Bryce, for direct communications between the United States and the Dominion Government.

Announcement of this fact was made here following the exclusive publication in the AMERICAN of the President's intention to open negotiations early in October. It is the President's hope now that the latter part of October will find the negotiations in full swing.

Important developments may grow out of the affairs, having a direct bearing upon the general tariff of the United States, particularly if the treaty finally negotiated should grant to Canadian exports to the United States a lower rate of duty than is provided for in the Payne-Aldrich law.

This is one of the problems the President will be called upon to deal with. Should the reciprocity treaty finally agreed upon make these concessions to Canada, the effect of its ratification by the Senate would seemingly be to repeal the Payne-Aldrich law so far as it affects Canada.

President Has Expedient.

The President's view of this is that a treaty is the law of the land, and as the treaty-making power may cover all subjects, there is no reason why it may not include the tariff. To prevent any difficulty arising, however, or any question being raised as to the right of the Senate and Executive practically to enact a revenue law without the participation of the lower house, it is the belief here that the President would consent to follow the method adopted when the Cuban reciprocity treaty was negotiated, viz., the submission of the document to both houses, where it was ratified by joint resolution.

There is a general belief also that the House, as well as the Senate, is in a mood now to ratify a reciprocity treaty, even if it provided for lower rates than the Payne-Aldrich law. There is a splendid opportunity at hand, therefore, for the President to make an object lesson of the Canadian negotiations and give point to his plea for a revision of the tariff inter en schedule by schedule.

In New England and in all the States that border on the Canadian line there is an insistent demand for reciprocal trade relations. In fact, the successful negotiation of such a treaty would almost completely remove the objections to the Payne-Aldrich law in those sections of the country. It is therefore in line with his general tariff policy that the President now plans to go forward with his reciprocity plans.

Cabinet to Arrange Details.

As was pointed out, the President's negotiations with Finance Minister Fielding of Canada, last March, opened the way for future negotiations. The consent of Ambassador Bryce to direct negotiations further facilitates matters.

It was agreed last March when the President asserted the threatened tariff war with the Dominion that at a later day the two Governments should come together to talk reciprocity. The time is now ripe.

It is believed, and though violent opposition to such a treaty has arisen among the manufacturers of Canada, Premier Laurier has recently made a series of speeches, in which he warmly advocated reciprocity with the United States.

The opposition of manufacturers to reciprocity will make it necessary to leave this feature of the negotiations until last.

At the coming meeting of the Cabinet the matter will be discussed at length, and details provisionally arranged. The negotiations will probably be conducted through the State Department, with Charles M. Pepper, one of the government's trade experts, acting as chief adviser for the United States.

While the President regards the matter of the utmost importance and is anxious that the negotiations shall go forward as rapidly as possible, there is small chance that any treaty will be agreed upon in time to be submitted to Congress at the session which convenes in December.

MRS. TUCKER LOSES WATCH

Mrs. Lucy A. Tucker, mother of Charles L. Tucker, who was electrocuted for the murder of Mabel Page, to-day lost her watch while in the Washington street shopping district. This watch contains the only picture Mrs. Tucker has of her dead son. For this reason, and because the watch was a gift from her son, Mrs. Tucker has appealed to BOSTON AMERICAN in the hope that whoever finds the watch will return it to her.

Mrs. Tucker was shopping in Siegel's and believes she lost the watch between that store and the five and ten-cent store. It is a small hunting case watch on a foil chain. Mrs. Tucker hopes that this appeal will be seen by the finder and that they will be able to return it to her. She is willing to give a reward to the finder.

Mrs. Tucker is now living at No. 3882 Washington street, Forest Hills, and the watch may be returned to that address or to this office.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A weekly society paper revives the old rumor that Count Boni de Castellane, the divorced husband of Anna Gould, whose matrimonial difficulties were for years the talk of both sides of the Atlantic is to be married to Miss Anne Morgan, the daughter of the great financier. The story comes from Aix les Baines, and says that several friends of Miss Morgan give the story credence, although her intimates in this country laugh at it. The Castellane frequently visited Miss Morgan at Versailles this Summer, where she was the guest of her friends, Miss Elizabeth Maguire and Miss Elsie de Wolfe.

GRAHAME-WHITE IS THEATRE ATTRACTION

Claude Grahame-White was nearly as much of an attraction at the Colonial Theatre last night as was the performance of "The Aviators." At the close of the performance the distinguished guest was taken behind the scenes and there he met Miss Julia Sanderson, Percival Knight and others of the company, whose acquaintance he had previously made in England.

ACTOR COHAN'S BOSTON WIFE A MOTHER AGAIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—George M. Cohan, the actor-playwright, and his wife are today receiving congratulations on the second visit of the stork to their home. The newcomer is another daughter.

Mrs. Cohan was Agnes Nolan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nolan of Brookline. Her marriage to George Cohan took place June 29, 1907, at Freehold, N. J. She was a member of his company at the time. A daughter was born to them June 22, 1909.

Cohan had to wait six months for the consent of his bride's mother to marry. Gossip said that this interval was necessary on account of Cohan's divorce from his first wife, Ethel Levy. This rumor was denied.

Mrs. Cohan is one of fifteen children. Her father is a letter carrier whom President Roosevelt reinstated when he learned the size of his family. Her sister, Loretta Nolan, was bridesmaid for Queenie Sandford at her marriage to Richard Harding Davis, Governor Draper's son.

The Cohans were married by a justice of the peace, the Catholic authorities refusing their sanction to a church ceremony. At their appearance on the stage the day of the wedding they were given an ovation and bombarded with rice.

"JIM" CURLEY'S DIOGENES HAS A CELL FINISH

While looking for an honest man in South Boston to-day William Keefe of No. 56 Adams street, Roxbury, and Joseph Walsh of No. 42 Nine Hill avenue, Roxbury, were arrested by Sergeant Haslett of the Broadway station.

Both men are members of the Ward 17 Tammany Club, of which Councilman James M. Curley, candidate for Congress in the Tenth District, is head. They were hired by Curley, it is said, to go to the Peninsula district to-day to do some political work. Keefe carried a sign and Walsh some handbills.

On Trail of McNary.

On the sign in large black letters were the words: "I am Diogenes seeking the honest big man, McNary."

The circulars or handbills distributed contained references to the appointment McNary's fitness for office and a few passages from the Scripture.

The men boarded the east end of electric cars and rode up and down Broadway. The sign was placed over the back dasher of the car in front and the handbill distributed.

Becoming tired of riding Keefe and Walsh tried walking for an enjoyment. All this time they were unable to find the "honest man."

Sergeant Shows 'Em One.

Sergeant Haslett was walking along Broadway and ran into Keefe and Walsh. This is the conversation which took place between the officer and the two men at A street and West Broadway:

"You come with me and I'll show you where to find some honest man who will give you good accommodations and who will make you to pay charges for your next move," said Sergeant Haslett.

"What, sergeant, you don't mean to arrest us, do you?"

"No, this is only a little joke," added the officer. Both men were booked at the Broadway Station on the technical charge of violating the city ordinance relative to carrying signs and passing out handbills.

TO CURE DANDRUFF

A Very Simple Thing to Do if You Do It Right

Do you know that dandruff can be quickly cured by simply washing the hair and scalp with Birt's Head Wash? Use it two or three times a week, and very soon your scalp will be clean, smooth and pink, with not a trace of scales or dandruff. Your hair will take on new life, and become soft and glossy. Perhaps you have heretofore tried the plan of frequent washing with common soap, but try again with Birt's Head Wash and see the difference. The reason is that ordinary soaps and shampoos contain an excess of alkali, which hurts the scalp more than it helps it. Birt's Head Wash is made of refined soap, Cochin cocoanut oil, white of eggs, glycerin and salicylic acid. At drug and dept. stores. 25c and 50c.

"BABY" BEST, NEWPORT PET, AGAIN A BRIDE

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Miss Annie Livingston Best, who a few years ago was "Baby" Best, pet of New York and Newport society, was married to Arthur Carroll of Tarrytown, this afternoon. The ceremony took place at No. 64 East Seventy-seventh street, the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Clermont Livingston Best, and was attended by only a few relatives and intimate friends.

The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, officiated. Mrs. John Aspergren was matron of honor, while Laurence Carroll attended his brother.

"Baby" Best is the former Mrs. Elizur Yale-Smith. She divorced that well-known young man in 1908 after a very brief matrimonial experience. He subsequently went into bankruptcy. Then he went to Europe, where he has spent most of his time since.

Her beauty and vivacity made "Baby," as every one called her, the most popular girl in Newport a few seasons ago. She scarcely made her debut before scores of eligible youths sought her hand. Among them was Alfred Hamilton Smith, a young man of splendid family and personality, but of little fortune.

Miss Best favored him for a time, but it is said, relatives pointed out the advantage of marrying Yale-Smith, who was supposed to be immensely wealthy. At all events, young Holbrook received his dismissal and "Baby's" engagement to Yale-Smith was announced. Within a few days Holbrook was found dead by his own hand.

The Yale-Smith Best marriage took place in December, 1907. The separation followed about five months later. The young husband declared there had been "too much mother-in-law" and spoke irreverently of Mrs. Best as "the old Battle Axe."

Mrs. Best and "Baby" on the other hand, declared Yale-Smith had deceived them as to his fortune, that he was penniless, and that he led a wild life from the very time he was married. Then, in 1908, came the divorce. "Baby" resumed her maiden name and took up her social position with fine grace.

Mr. Carroll is the son of General and Mrs. Howard Carroll, of Tarrytown, and is a Columbia graduate.

PLAISTED HERE WITH WIFE FOR SHORT VISIT

Governor-elect Frederick W. Plaisted came to Boston today to take a short rest after the brief but strenuous campaign which resulted in the remarkable Democratic victory in Maine. He was accompanied by Mrs. Plaisted. The Governor-elect stands by his first declaration that he, and he alone, is to be Governor of Maine. While in Boston he will plan his action, which means that when he returns to the Pine Tree State he will have determined the official heads which will fall into the basket as soon as he takes office. Also, he will have in his pocket a list of appointments that will complete revolution in the Maine State Government.

He is expected to indicate within a few days the men who will receive his support for the United States Senate and present the most prominently mentioned candidate is Charles F. Johnson of Waterville. The Legislature is Democratic by at least 111 to sixty-nine, thereby insuring a Senator of that political faith to succeed Senator Hale. Formal announcement will be made by Mr. Johnson within a few days, and leading Democrats assert there will be no opposition to him of any consequence.

Mr. Johnson has been twice the Democratic candidate for Governor, Congressional candidate in the Third District twice and was urged by many delegates at the State Convention at Augusta in June to be a candidate for Governor, and it had been presumed would prefer a place on the Supreme bench.

GOODWIN IS NAMED BY REPUBLICANS OF CONNECTICUT

HARTFORD, Ct., Sept. 15. The Republican convention named the following State ticket:

Governor, Charles A. Goodwin of Hartford; Lieut.-Governor, Dennis A. Hinkeside of New Haven; Secretary of State, Matthew H. Rogers of Bridgeport; State Treasurer, Costello Lippett of Norwich; State Comptroller, Thomas D. Bradstreet of Thomaston; Attorney-General, John H. Light of Norwalk; Representative-at-large in Congress, John Q. Tilson of New Haven.

A platform was adopted which enunciated party principles beginning with an endorsement of the National administration and extending through a discussion of matters in State affairs, in favor of a public service commission, and other legislation described as remedial, which suggested the initiative and referendum. Assembly. A plank for direct primaries was tabled.

Mr. Hearst Thanked by Democratic Chief for Aid in Redeeming Maine

Fac-simile of telegram received yesterday from Mr. Beane, who managed Governor-Elect Plaisted's campaign.

Hallowell, Me., Sept. 14, 1910

Hon. William R. Hearst,

Boston American.

The Boston American helped the people of Maine redeem Maine from inefficient government. It is a pleasure to give credit to whom credit is due. We appreciate the position taken by the American and the generous contribution to our success. I thank you for the people, for my party, for my committee and for myself. Sincerely yours,

Fred Emery Beane,

Chairman Democratic State Committee.

By Frank G. Mixer,
Treasurer-elect, Waldo County.

The Boston American had a great bearing on the Maine election, and especially in the country districts, where it is widely read. Mr. Hearst certainly furnished great aid.

Fred Emery Beane.

Maine Winners Give Hearst Papers Credit for Their Victory

The following telegrams were received today:

By D. J. McGillicuddy,
Congressman-elect of Lewiston.

The good work of the Boston American in the Maine campaign is much appreciated by all of us. There is no doubt that it had much effect on the voters. The American helped to arouse enthusiasm and to inspire confidence in our party.

By Cyrus W. Davis,
Editor of the Waterville Sentinel, twice candidate for Governor on the Democratic State ticket.

The clear, concise, comprehensive, logical and convincing presentation of Maine issues in the special Maine editions of the Boston American was a great big factor in the result. Thousands of Maine readers had the opportunity, which would have been available in no other way, to thoroughly post themselves on Maine's political situation. The State owes Mr. Hearst a debt of gratitude.

By Eben F. Littlefield,
County Attorney-elect of Waldo County, Maine.

I think the Boston American helped a great deal in the result. The American reaches many Maine people who do not read State papers. There are more Boston papers read in Maine cities than Maine papers.

Political Calendar and Notes of Political Doings

CONGRESSMAN FOSS ON MAINE VICTORY

The deep unrest that caused the Maine voters to rise up in their might is not confined to Maine, for it is all over the country. In every State there are about 40,000 Bourbon Democrats and as many standpat Republicans who will only vote one way, but there are new voters, with liberal views, who insist on voting for men and not for a machine or ring. What they did in Maine we are going to do here in Massachusetts, for the old, hidebound ideas have got to pass.—Congressman Eugene Foss.

If you live in the Tenth Congressional District and want to become familiar with the "bosses" and at the same time enjoy a treat of oratory of the "independent sort," join the open air rally at Fields corner this evening and listen to Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell. He will be there at 8 o'clock. From there he goes to Dorchester Hall, Harrison square, where he will be tendered a reception by the citizens of Ward 24. A grand stop will be at Kelleher's Hall, Neponset. Friday he will hold open air rallies at Quincy street and Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester avenue and Mt. Vernon street and Savin Hill avenue corner of Dorchester avenue.

A newspaper man just back from the Roosevelt tour says: "If Massachusetts folks could take a trip through the West and see some of the Governors who preside over States out there they would be truly proud of Governor Draper and of every other Governor they have had for several years past."

The Ward 22 Democratic Club, of which Joseph F. Goode is president, will begin a series of Friday night meetings to-morrow night in Needham Hall, No. 1488 Columbus avenue. Special attention is being given to the work of registration.

A candidate who was nothing an open-air rally in Charlestown had his audience keyed to a high pitch. He was carrying everything before him. Finally he made one bad break. He said he believed in the referendum. An side-bodied citizen, who was an attentive listener, turned the rally into a tragedy by yelling at the top of his voice: "I never voted in the old country for a man who believed in the REFORMATION and he the powers above me I won't now."

* * *

At a meeting of the both trustees Hugh O. Meiriath was unanimously elected superintendent of the department. He will report for duty today. The salary is $2000. Since the retirement of Joseph O'Brien a few months ago there have been many applications for the position, which has been placed under civil service. From the names send down by the commissioners McGrath's was selected.

"Alive to the interest of the ward" is the epigram on a politico card issued by "Con" Cutter Jr. as he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives in Ward 17. "Con" has a lame arm from ringing door bells in quest of promises of support for Carley's committee." The Young Men's Democratic Club of the ward has put Cutter on their "slate" with Congressman O'Connell and "Tom" Joyce.

* * *

Tammanyites in Ward 17 would like to know where Councillor Charles J. Quirk and Timothy J. Connolly are in the Congressional fight. An investigating committee is busily engaged trying to unravel the cloak of secrecy from Quirk and Connolly's minds. The anti-Tammany faction in the ward say the committee will meet with disappointment.

Tom Gillfin of East Boston, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Ninth district, is his own press agent and rallying committee. He can be seen in the "merry" part of the battleground when the spellbinders from other sections of the city are down town feeding the inner man. The "Gilf" says it's one story-leaf that he beats "somebody" in the contest.

* * *

"Hully gee," yelled a Curleyite in Ward 17 when he got a glimpse of the O'Connell rally in Dorchester square. "It looks like a pork barrel, added Tim Connolly, who was an interested listener to Glynn's oratory. Glynn and Connolly are a sweetie points politively. Last year Connolly, who was with Curley, hustled Glynn, who was with the opposition, to meet him in joint debate at the Norfolk avenue playground. Present indications point to a renewal of the challenge.

Pay close attention!

This $12.50 suit was made especially to our order for this season's selling. Every suit is brand new, 1910 style. We chose the woolens and trimmings and gave our personal O. K. on every inch of cloth before a piece was cut.

Our instructions were to build a $20 suit for us to sell at $12.50. And now we offer them to you.

In an experience of over a quarter of a century of selling clothes we have never seen a handsomer line of grays, browns, blues, mixed, and solid black woolens made into more stylish garments.

If your limit of expense on a suit of clothes is anywhere up to $20, you can save everything above $12.50 by getting one of these "Harrison" specials. We are open evenings till 9 o'clock for the benefit of men who are occupied during the day.

INTELLIGENT HELP

A prominent business man in Boston, who uses the American's want columns all the time for the purpose of securing "help"—both "male and female"—says that he gets the most intelligent help from advertising. People who are vaguely in search of employment are not nearly so capable as those who respond to an advertisement. Natural, too, when you come to think of it.

The classified department of the American, daily and Sunday, is the people's own market place.

ILLINOIS HAS FIRST PRIMARY UNDER NEW LAW

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—The first primary election under Illinois' third direct primary law is being held to-day. It comes after a legislative fight extending to all corners of the State, the chief issue of which has been based on the alleged corruption involved in the election of United States Senator William Lorimer.

In nearly every legislative district a fight has been made on the Jackpot politics, about which testimony was given by witnesses at the recent trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, who is seeking reelection as a State representative. After his acquittal last week he began a fast campaign for nomination.

State Senator John Broderick and Representatives R. E. Wilson, Joseph Clark and Henry S. Shepherd, Democratic aspirants, are also under indictment for bribery.

A fight also has been waged in the State to defeat Edward A. Shurtleff, Speaker of the Illinois House.

Three Chicago Republican congressmen are opposed by candidates running on insurgent platforms, namely: James R. Mann in the second district, Henry Sherman Boutell in the ninth and George E. Foss in the tenth.

Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of the eighteenth district (Danville) also has an insurgent opponent.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 200,000 more than its next highest competitor and 75,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

NOT MUCH IN SIGHT FOR UNCLE JOE

FOUND DEAD WITHIN SIGHT OF HIS HOME

SAUGUS, Sept. 15.—The body of Elmer F. Humphrey, a traveling superintendent for the General Electric Company of Lynn, was found early to-day at the foot of Bailey's Hill, within sight of his home. Dr. G. W. Gale said death was due to heart disease. Humphrey, who was forty-six years old, leaves a widow and finally.

BIG OUTING FOR IRISH FORESTERS

Delegates to the number of 228, a substantial portion of them being women, representing branches of the order in Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Rhode Island and New York, who have attended the biennial convention of the Irish National Foresters' Benefit Society in Hibernian Hall, Union street, Charlestown, will enjoy a sail down the harbor to-day. They will stop over at Nantasket for dinner, while a number of amusement places and return to Boston in the evening.

The convention opened last Monday and the vast amount of business which came before the delegates was cleared up in a short time.

The organization is in a flourishing condition, both numerically and financially, according to the reports of the officers, and the prospects for continued success are very encouraging.

Vice-Chief Ranger John F. Hanavor of Worcester was elected high chief ranger, at the convention. He was opposed by Martin E. Joyce, president of the Bunker Hill branch.

Other officers elected are: Sub high chief ranger, Michael J. O'Neil of Lawrence; supreme treasurer, John F. Ahern, Charlestown; supreme secretary, John A. Rose, Pawtucket; general beadle, Patrick J. Cunningham, Brighton; first trustee, Catherine A. Boyle, Worcester; second trustee, Thomas Herlihy, Cambridge; third trustee, John Buckley, Somerville.

Almost everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

SHIRT-WAIST MAKERS HERE TO ORGANIZE

The first open meeting ever held among the 2,500 girl shirt-waist makers of Boston, in an attempt to organize them into a trade union, was called to-day after months of work among the girls by the Women's Trade Union League of this city. It will be open to all shirt-waist makers, and will be held at the League Headquarters, No. 7 Warrenton street, to-night.

Despite the secrecy which those behind the new move have maintained, it developed to-day that they have succeeded in getting hundreds of girls to join the organization. It is predicted that the number will be doubled to-night. The next move may be a general demand for higher wages among the shirt-waist makers, although the officers of the League refuse to state when this demand will be forthcoming.

It is said that many girl shirt-waist makers here get only $3 a week. Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union, is the principal speaker at to-night's meeting.

RACING MOTOR BOAT REDSKIN BURNED

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 15.—The racing motor boat Redskin, owned by F. S. Beal of Haverhill, was burned to the water's edge to-day as she lay moored off the North End boathouse. The cause is unknown. The loss is estimated at $2,000. The Redskin was one of the fastest boats on the Merrimac River. She won first prize in the races last month on the Charles River basin.

E. T. HARRINGTON HITS PHONE RATES.

Every mercantile house and residence a pay station is, in my opinion, the aim of the telephone company, and their claim, according to bulletin No. 2, to the effect that they are philanthropists, I consider ridiculous. The telephone is no longer a luxury; it is a necessity, and the increased cost in all things that enter into business or the home makes this an additional burden that is unnecessary and uncalled for.—Edward T. Harrington, real estate dealer, who has used 'phones for many years.

PRIZE WINNERS GIVEN SUNDAY

The prize winners in the Census Contest will be announced in Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN. The task of tabulating the thousands of replies received is almost completed. This work began immediately at the close of the contest following the publication in last Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN of the official figures from the Census Bureau in Washington that Boston has a population of 670,585. There were a great many contestants whose guesses were close to the right figure.

Watch for the list of prize winners in Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

There will be no $500 now. Thirteen prizes awarded. To the person who guessed the nearest to the official figure a first prize of $25 will be awarded. The second best guess wins $10, the third prize is $5. To the next ten best guesses $1 each will be awarded. BE SURE TO GET NEXT SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

FIGHT TO HOLD CHICAGO SUSPECT IN GREAT THEFT

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—George W. Fitzgerald, at one time assorting teller in the United States sub-treasury here, who was rearrested yesterday, was brought into Judge Landis's court room as soon to-day, where his attorney, Edward Litzinger, made a plea to have his bail of $40,000 in the $175,000 federal sub treasury theft, reduced to a smaller figure. It was said that if Fitzgerald should be able to procure the $50,000 bail the government would ask for an increase to keep him behind the bars.

It is related here to-day by attaches of the District Attorney's office that Fitzgerald has, since the disappearance of the money on February 19, 1907, done the following things:

Organized the Illinois Car Manufacturing Company, with a $50,000 plant at Hammond, Ind., organized the Illinois Bolt, Nut and Forging Company, with a large plant in Chicago; dealt extensively in stocks and bonds; raised from a moderate mixed fortune a $10,000 home, which he sold for and furnished expensively and lived in costly style and spent money lavishly for the entertainment of his friends.

Was Always Watched.

From the time of the returning of an indictment on February 17, Fitzgerald was never out of sight of secret service men. Somewhere in mid while he slept operatives were on guard at his home or hotel. Meanwhile all his financial transactions were checked up closely and certain investments traced to him.

The $175,000 disappeared from Fitzgerald's cage in the subtreasury. When questioned regarding the disappearance of the money, Fitzgerald said that he had gone out to lunch and that when he returned the money was gone. He was closely questioned at the time, and was shadowed for months.

A year after the robbery occurred, Fitzgerald was arrested by a private detective agency, acting for William Glidden's bonding company. The charge was not pressed, however, and Fitzgerald instituted damage suits against Baldenweck and the detective agency.

Congress Clears Official.

Mr. Baldenweck, who is to be succeeded by L. F. Small of Kankakee, Ill., as assistant treasurer in charge of the Chicago subtreasury, went to Washington to Presedent Taft on September 5. Congress relieved Mr. Baldenweck of any responsibility in the loss, which is then left on the department.

The indictment against Fitzgerald as read in court specifies four counts. Three charge embezzlement and the fourth charges larceny. Under these charges a maximum sentence of ten years in a Federal prison or a fine equal to the sum embezzled is the penalty on conviction.

ASKS COURT TO OPEN WAY INTO COUNTRY

Denied entrance to this country by the local immigration officials, who allege he has a physical defect, Pio Sabatino Sapio, twenty years of age, an Italian, has filed a petition for habeas corpus proceedings in the United States District Court. Sapio came from Italy on the Romanic several weeks ago and alleges that he is being deprived of his freedom.

GRAHAME-WHITE AND CURTISS RACE TO-DAY FOR $3,000

ENGLISHMAN WILL USE HIS FAMOUS BLERIOT MACHINE: AMERICAN WILL FLY BIPLANE

Englishman will have to drive his best to win the $1,000 cup offered by a member of the Harvard Aeronautics Society as a prize.

Prettiest Flying of Meet.

If the flying of yesterday is criterion of the exhibitions to be given to-day, the patrons are to see some of the finest flying of the entire meet today. Yesterday the aviators were allowed to gambol-pause in their exhibitions. The object was some of the prettiest flying and the best demonstration of the flying machine ever given on the field.

The flying of both Brookins and Johnstone kept the crowd cheering constantly. Brookins did high sailing, short turns, and Johnstone dipped and swerved in a manner new to any of the darkened crowds, who have filled their favorite seats in the grandstand during every day of the meet.

Grahame-White was to be outdone, showed his big, clumsy appearing Farman to advantage. He turned and swerved until it seemed he would fall to the ground, but by some other machine, but always at what seemed the last moment he would swing the big planes to a different and glide away.

During the afternoon the Wright machines made three flights, Grahame-White four, Curtiss three, and Willard two. At one time two Curtiss machines, Grahame-White's Bleriot, and a Wright machine were sailing in a bunch. They flew at a height of from 200 to 350 feet, and as they sailed through the air big rays of the setting sun gave the appearance of a covey of giant birds, settling to rest.

This afternoon, it is probable that the same feat will be repeated. Several passengers will probably be given a taste of aerial flying game. The aviators will probably drive the field early Friday morning. The Wright machines will be ready for shipment then. Willard's machine have been shipped and Grahame-White will prepare to pack on his two aeroplanes.

As to-day will be the last chance the Boston cranes will have to see the bird men in action, it is thought that there will be a great crowd on hand to-2 o'clock.

The management of the meet state that there is no fashion with the aviators who have appeared. Aisain D. Claflin manager of the meet said to-day:

"There has been no question in regard to the guarantee money appearing for any of the aviators. We are perfectly satisfied that the aviators have fulfilled their contracts, and we feel deeply grateful to them for remaining three days extra days of the meet to give their brilliant exhibitions.

RALPH JOHNSTONE OUT TO MAKE A WORLD'S RECORD IN BOMB-DROPPING.

made up for by the decrease in weight after removing the engine.

The most noticeable difference between the Harvard Aeronautical Society's ideas on aeroplane construction and the machines at the meet which merely are the practical experiments of workmen wholly innocent of university training is the nice combination in this outcome of trained Harvard thought of aesthetics and the thoroughly practical. Even the long, flowing lines of the craft were not designed haphazard, but from the combination shaving power and forward blunder of polished aluminum to the tink kitchenette tucked away far aft in the aeroplane's tail, every flowing line is in absolute harmony with Mr. Martin's business board.

No Jarring Color Here.

Even the bows of ribbon that decorate the Chippendale seat and Shearton hassock to be used by Aviator Martin, are of a selected shade of J. Hem Lewis series, so that not a jarring note of color will be in evidence, even when an aviator's beard, thrilling far behind in the intense winds of rapid flying, brushes gently against the ribbon bows.

The effect when Jimmy takes the air will be some thing of a color scheme that will be emblematic of the Stars and Stripes of a magnificent nation which is moments of emotional anger so far forget its loyalty to the mother country as to turn upon her like a step-son and hand her a slam in the slats. And so these poor people gazing aloft from cities and towns as Jimmy spouts high over State after State what enthusiasts of patriotism, what glad huzzahs will pierce to the very heavens themselves as miles above them is unfolded the God given spectacle of graceful reddish whiskers against white chiffon planes against blue skies. Only the gleamiur stars of their nation's flag will be wanting, and who knows but when the groundhog rises from the earth stars may be seen also?

OHIO AVIATOR GETS BAD FALL AT MEET IN GARDEN CITY

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—At the conclusion of his first long flight in an aeroplane, Harry S. Harkness, an ambitious young aviator of Cleveland, had his machine wrecked at the Garden City (L. I.) aviation field to-day by making a precipitous descent. Harkness had flown the length of the field in his Aerodrome monoplane. In attempting to land his machine was totally wrecked. The aeronaut was unhajured.

HARVARD I. CAPTURES TITLE OF GROUNDHOG

The good naval ship Harvard I. owned by the Harvard Aeronautical Society, comes in for a share of good natured fun and is unofficially known as the Groundhog by the aviation men, according to the New York Sun, which printed the following story of the vessel:

The Groundhog, which has been long in the same hangar that contains the Wright machines and Mr. Harmon's monoplane since the beginning of the Squantum meet, was constructed after years of scientific researches by the Harvard Aeronautical Society. Jimmy Martin, its builder, while planning its thrust, angle of incidence, pitch and stabilization, first experimented with a number of higher mathematics from short division to plain solid and differential eucalyptus months before he even attacked the secondary matter of the aeroplane's architecture.

When the question of deciding upon this delicate touch was presented by Jimmy before an extraordinary session of the Harvard Aeronautical Society many weeks were next to lost in interesting but impractical studies on the question of whether it is to follow the severe classification of Colonial architecture in the front elevation of the Groundhog or to go in for a style more practical. The Groundhog elevation both methods finally selected showed an elegant aeroplane of the English three-story and basement type, this style admitting of a more free introduction of a tradesman's entrance, so that the mechanicians might have a door other than the one to be used by the aviator, Jimmy Martin.

Gets the Ground Record.

The Groundhog, which was built almost entirely of materials known and been in the possession of the Most Gracious Majesty King George, King of Great Britain and all that part of Ireland north of London-derry, is painted to match the monoplane of Harvard and the Back Bay, inasmuch as even the workmanship was done by the royal subjects of the King, who composed the population of the Back Bay and Cambridge.

The only bit of workmanship in the aeroplane is the chassis, which is a stock model from the factory of the Pride of the Village Baby Carriage and Infant Supply Company, Limited, of Brooklyn, an American island opposite to the City of New York.

Although the Groundhog was by no means the first aeroplane to be assembled in the Squantum meet it has clinched the track record for accuracy in remaining in one spot uncontested for the longest continuous repose. The most violent winds so far have left it as unscathed as if it were the rock of Gibraltar. Even if its ballast equipment, which consists of a complete set of the Encyclopedia Britannica—part of the set resting on the lower main and the other half scattered at needed spots on the port lower plane—were removed, the Harvard aeroplane, so it is claimed by Jimmy Martin, could be dragged out upon the field by a team of Percherons and left there in the path of a hurricane without the slightest fear that the Groundhog would turn turtle.

Beautiful in Repose.

From the large bows of crimson hair ribbon rising far above the ground on the starboard side of the chassis, it curls down to the neat mudguards and fender there to an air of elegance and repose about this creation of Harvard's foremost aeronautical brains which instantly roots one to the ground with admiration.

Jutting out beyond the forward blinder, which Mr. Martin made of aluminum highly polished, so that it also could be used at will as a shaving mirror, is a tiller overhead designed from a composite photograph of the cuttle corps of designers. The frame itself is cast of Portland cement with a head made of costly solid ivory.

Passing now between the forward elevating controls, either of which may be used at will by the fearless aviator, he comes first of all to a basement cunningly concealed between the wheels of the chassis.

This basement, necessarily cramped for room, is open to the weather except for the protection afforded by the underbrush, which throughout the Summer grows about the machine with luxurious wealth. The chimpanzee seat occupied by the aviator is directly above an outside cellar door leading to this basement. Cubdespondent Aviator Jimmy Martin, even when many miles in the air, can reach right down between his lower limbs into this basement for fresh tanks of gasoline, the interior of which, on hand, even when he makes his first flight he decides to remain in the air many, many hours, an almost endless supply of fuel.

Endless is used advisedly, because even if he finds when the Groundhog makes her next flight that there is a limit to her lifting capacity, which theoretically is preposterous, Jimmy Martin has the more than his eye upon acres of good dry ground connected directly with the chassis down which he can sink rockers and all into cellars, if necessary, in which may be stored additional fuel tanks.

Escapes Burden of Engine.

During the past few days of the Squantum meet the Groundhog has been unique among aeroplanes in that it is the only one not equipped with an engine. As the engine used at the Stadium tests not only soiled the chiffon planes and harranged the bows of crimson satin decorating the struts, but also was found to be useless as a source of momentum, its absence is not a serious loss to the aeroplane.

Also the Harvard aeronautical scientists instantly grasped by the simple experiment of trying unanimously to lift the machine before and after removing the engine, decided that any doubtful advantage a motor equipped aeroplane might have over the Groundhog is more than

MME. CAVALIERI'S BIG BROTHER TELLS HOW ROW WITH CHANLER HAD FIRST START

HAD DINNER TABLE BATTLE AND USED BREAD AND CHERRIES FOR WEAPONS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Lina Cavalieri is expected to reach here within ten days or two weeks to make a fight for the fortune of Robert W. Chanler. Incidentally she will attempt to convince Americans was herself the victim of legal technicalities and of the stubbornness of the trustees of the Chanler funds, who would not pay over to her the husband's money even when he said she could have it.

She is alarmed at the possible effect the expose of her prenuptial negotiations with Chanler may have on her operatic career in this country.

Cavalieri is hurriedly making her arrangements to come here and remain until after her season of 1910-11 is finished. Her friends say she is going to stay here until she gets the money she thinks is due her. Chanler's friends say that in that case she will bid Paris an eternal farewell.

The statement that Mrs. Cavalieri Chanler is even now arranging for a protracted sojourn on this side of the Atlantic was made by Sidney Hardis, personal attorney for the Chanlers.

Oreste Cavalieri, the brother of the opera singer, denies that his sister duped Chanler. He alleges that members of the Chanler family are to blame for the present troubles of the pair.

He declares that Mrs. Richard Aldrich, sister of Chanler, strongly opposed the marriage. A reporter saw Mrs. Aldrich at her home in Dutchess county. She was asked the questions:

"What are the relations of Robert Chanler and his wife? Have they separated for good? Does he love her as much as ever? Will their pleasant relations be resumed when she gets back to this country?

Mrs. Aldrich's eyes flashed. "I know nothing at all about the relations of my brother and the person you mention. I am not interested in that person's affairs and my brother can take care of himself. Good day."

Says "Bob" Was Broke.

Mme. Lina's brother Oreste said:

"Robert Winthrop Chanler came back to the United States because he was broke. I mean by that he had no immediate funds with which to lavish through Paris or to spend in his usual reckless and prodigal manner. In fact, he told me at one time: 'They think I'm a millionaire around here, and that's all right, too. I can spend my money with any of them.'

"That was all right for the time that Chanler had money in Paris. But it became another matter when he had to borrow funds from my sister. But the end came when she was forced to go to the hospital. He appeared at the hospital five days after the operation and wanted to borrow more money. My sister refused to lend him any more and he rushed off in a great rage."

Chanler refused to comment on the situation.

"When I do get ready to talk about this affair," he said, "I shall issue a statement through my attorney, Mr. Hardis. Madame is at liberty to give out for publication any statement she chooses. That is her affair. I do not think the time has arrived yet for me to do any talking, and I do not intend to do so until that time does arrive."

BROTHER OF PRETTY LINA RECITES TALE OF BOB'S ROMANCE

By ADA PATTERSON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A handsome Italian, as handsome in his own sturdier way as is his beautiful sister, told me in agitated voice, with nervous gestures, the story of Lina Cavalieri's shipwrecked romance about which two continents are greedily reading.

He told it as the spokesman for his sister, told it, he said, as she would tell it herself if she chose to lay aside the garment of reserve and defend herself. But he admitted, the fire of indignation burned more fiercely in his breast than in hers.

"Ladies are so strange," said Oreste Cavalieri in his still slightly halting English. "They have special reasons for some of their acts that no man can understand.

"I did not want my sister to marry Chanler. I believed from the first that he was false. But she redected and at last decided.

"But listen. My sister is the victim, the only one in this case that Chanler has thrust into public notice. She has at all times been perfectly honest with her husband.

"She told him she did not love him. Before he sailed for Paris she said:

"'I do not love you. I have affection, friendship for you. That is all.' He said that was enough for a beginning. He who offered to adopt her son, Alexander. She made no suggestion. In fact, she said to him: 'No. Alexander will be twenty-one in a few years and then he may decide whether he wishes it. Perhaps he will not want to bear any name but the one I have given him.'

"When he was courting her he said that he wished to make over his fortune to her, and instead he has tried to get her to write a letter to his creditors in America saying she would pay his debts.

"He did this, knowing the state of his affairs, knowing that he would be heavily indebted insolvent. Yet they say he was sane.

"It was his trying to get her to write a letter that first made her doubt him. I spoke to me and I wanted to say some nice things to him, but she forbade me.

"Before they were married he told her about some debts. He said he owed about 5,000. After they were married he told her it was $30,000 or more.

"That made me angry. I said: 'If he loved you about his debts first he will deceive you again. You ought to let me talk to him.' But she put her hand on my arm and said:

"'Oh, no, Oreste. Do not be hasty.'

Threw Bread in Bride's Face.

"My sister was always gentle with him, always, but once, when they had an argument at the table and he flung a crust of bread into her face and she threw a basket of cherries back at him.

"I don't know what the argument was about, but I'll never forget how she looked at him and how he said in a low voice: 'How dared you do that?'

"He apologized. He said he didn't mean it, and the quarrel was soon over. But this is something that will surprise you about the man who complains of Dolgorouki's attentions. He knew the Prince Dolgorouki has been my sister's admirer, and he was glad when he heard that the Prince placed his automobile at their disposal while he was travelling. Chanler skipped his leg and said in his roaring voice: 'Good, good.'

"When Lina became ill and had to be operated upon for appendicitis, Chanler sent a telegram to Dolgorouki himself telling him of her illness. A few days after the operation he met Dolgorouki at my sister's bedside at the hospital. He greeted him pleasantly, and said: 'I am glad to see you. I hope you will often come to see my wife and keep her cheerful.'

"As the same time Prince Murat, a boy of eighteen, who was convalescent at the hospital, was calling on Lina. I also was there. When we went out Chanler said, 'That is the limit. Two prices.'

"I said, 'What! would you have chimney sweeps?'

"He used to call on his former wife in Paris while my sister was in the hospital. We think that she prejudiced him against Lina, she and some of his friends.

"When my sister comes to this country I shall beg her to divorce this man. I will say, 'Divorce him and throw this worthless paper into his face.' But I do not believe Lina will do this.

"In Paris the sympathy is for my sister. In New York it will be now that the facts are known."

Bright's Disease

in its last stages completely cured by

Warner's Safe Cure

It is gratifying to read in her own words what Mrs. James W. Wray has to say about having been cured of Bright's Disease in its last stages. This cure was made 17 years ago and she is still a well and strong woman:

"I am very grateful for Warner's Safe Cure. I owe my life to its use. Seventeen years ago last February I had Bright's Disease in the last stages. When I say 'last stages' I know what I am talking about. I took Warner's Safe Cure for two years, and to-day I am a well and hearty woman.

"I have been thinking of writing you for years, and at last I have, as I see so many people suffering daily. I am never without it—it is worth $5.00 a bottle to me. Why should it not be the same to others who suffer in any way with their kidneys? I recommend it to any one who has pains in the back or any of kidney trouble as the best remedy I have ever used. I know what it has done for me and for others."—Mrs. James W. Wray, Devon, Pa.

When the albumen, instead of nourishing the body, passes through the broken down kidneys and is found in the urine, when the blood is thin and almost colorless, when the heart is weak and unable to rightly do its work, when the appetite is gone and the stomach is feeble, when the whole frame is weak, languid and lifeless and uraemic poisoning threatens the existence of the sufferer, Warner's Safe Cure by its mysterious and magic healing power upon the kidneys and the other organs and tissues of the body, restores the afflicted patient to health and vigor.

Warner's Safe Cure is purely vegetable, and contains no harmful drugs. Men skilled in botany and chemistry compound it. Put up in 50c and $1.00 sizes and sold by druggists everywhere.

For constipation and biliousness take Warner's Safe Pills, absolutely free from injurious substances, a perfect laxative. They do not gripe or leave any bad aftereffects. 25c a box.

To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys and liver that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will absolutely cure, a sample bottle and a sample box of Warner's Safe Pills will be sent FREE OF CHARGE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in the Boston Daily American.

SCHOOLBOYS BEGIN FOOTBALL PRACTICE

Football practice begins in all of the public schools in Boston this afternoon, but contrary to the usual custom, there will be no games played among the city school teams until after the first of October, this decision having been made yesterday, at a meeting of the school athletic instructors at the School Committee rooms.

In previous years school teams had been in the habit of practicing for about a week, and then jumping right into the thick of the fight with little regard to their well being, as it stands to reason that one week is insufficient for proper conditioning the players. Hence the decision this year to postpone the contests until after the first of October, giving the youths two weeks to round into shape.

Dr. Thomas W. Harrington, director of hygiene in the Boston public schools and in charge of the corps of athletic instructors and teachers of teams, called a meeting to discuss plans for the coming school year athletic season. The following, comprising the corps, met yesterday and elected: J. O'Leary, Latin High; D. O'Reilly, St. Joseph Hedding James H. Crowley, John I. O'Donnell, William C. Mathews, the former Harvard ball tosser, and Fred L. O'Brien.

Explain the New Game First.

Several hours were spent in discussing the outline of the season's plans. It was finally decided that the first two weeks of the season, from today to the first of October, would be given over to a drill in the rudiments of the game, and explaining and illustrating all of the changes under the new rules which the candidates have not yet mastered. Some explanations and illustrations of the new game were given the men on Saturday, and all were provided with rule books, so that little trouble is looked for in this direction.

The first two weeks' work will be that of practice in setting up drills, tackling on the ball, blocking, such as may be allowed under the new rules, interference and the like. It has been found from long experience that if these things are well drilled in all of these elementary points of the game before they are allowed to start off tests, fewer injuries result, and this is particularly true of falling on the ball, which is in itself a very ticklish job even in practice, undoubtedly more broken or dislocated shoulders having been caused by this particular phase of the game than most of the others put together.

Even at a place like Harvard, where the men are supposed to know how to handle themselves better than the average schoolboy, each year a surprisingly large number of players are laid out for some weeks, if not for the entire season, because of such an injury.

When the men have been rounded into good playing condition both physically and from the point of view of ability to play the game, from this two weeks' siege of strict practice, games will begin for all of the teams the first week in October.

Schools Have Strong Candidates.

The Boston Latin team expects to have about thirty or forty-five candidates report for practice, with eight veterans returning to the school from the team last year.

The Latin school team had a rather varied season last year, winning one game, and tieing all the rest in the school league. But prospects this year seem brighter, as the material is somewhat less fickle.

English High school, on the other hand, although many of the veterans will be seen playing again, has lost the services of her best player, Harold Jarvis, selected captain for this year, and who was without doubt, one of the greatest all-around schoolboy athletes in New England.

LENOX COACHING PARADE TO-DAY

Boston society gave a royal reception to the coaching parade at Lenox, one of the most picturesque of the annual events in the Berkshires, and nearly every villa and hotel was represented when the bugle call sounded for the start. The weather was ideal, the coaches started under a cloudless sky and with just the tinge to the autumn air to make the parade a great success.

The horses were splendidly equipped and the coaches counters of appearance to Lenox history. Great throngs of society people saw the coaching parade an ovation as Malin, Washington and Sandie street were passed.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry P. Jacques of this city with Miss Elizabeth Williams were among the guests upon the coach of Miss Kate Cary, which was finely driven by the latter.

Miss May Denny was a guest upon the coach of Mrs. Wilfins H. N. Griswold, one of the smartest in the line.

Sturgis had a handsome brake to which he drove four handsome horses. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham and Samuel Russell of this city were guests upon the coach of Girard Foster.

At the conclusion of the parade, Miss Cary gave a luncheon to her carriage party, which was handsomely decorated with lavender flowers and the contents of the effect greatly heightened by the display of many super hunting prints.

Among those who gave dinners were Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Duxey of this city.

BREAKS 5-MILE AUTO RECORD

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 15.—It became known to-day that Dr. Mallory Kennedy, Florida's automobile speed king, has lowered the world's record made by Barney Oldfield and Louis Strang by at least one second. Dr. Kennedy made his record last Friday on the circular half-mile track here, when he went the distance in 5 minutes 21.25 seconds. To-day statisticians figured out that the Oldfield-Strang records made at Worcester, Mass., on July 15, had been beaten.

CUBS SUED FOR USING RINGERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—The baseball magnates of Ottumwa, Iowa, have entered a suit for damages against the Cubs, alleging that President Murphy ran a couple of ringers into the game in Ottumwa on a recent trip, whereas the Iowa team contracted that all the famous Chicago players should be exhibited. President Lynch of the Ottumwa Club, in a statement to the National League Commission, said that younger brothers of Johnny Evers and Art the Hoffman played ball at Ottumwa instead of the real stars.

Lynch says that the exhibition was so miserable that the Ottumwa Club had no difficulty in piling up a 10 to 1 score against the Cubs. Lynch further avers that young Evers and Hoffman masqueraded as their older brothers when signing their names on the hotel register.

NO WORLD SERIES TILL AFTER OCT. 16

CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—Chairman Herrmann of the National Commission, to-day said that he considered it lamentable that the world's series will probably have to be played after the championship season of the Cubs and St. Louis on October 16.

That the series will be done by now almost certain, he declared.

President Lynch of the National League has still nothing to say in the Herrmann row about getting Robbins and Murphy to-gether, but he has had two weeks' time in which to do so.

BOXING NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Sammy Kelly sends word from the training quarters that Jack Goodman is already in the pink of condition for his ten-round bout with Fighting Joe Wagner, which takes place at the National Sporting Club, New York, Friday night. Kelly has trained faithfully for this bout as he realizes he cannot take any chances with Hyland, after selig him give Battling Hurley such a thrashing a short time ago.

If Goodman defeats Hyland he will take on Jack Britton in the early at 135 pounds. He is working in the same gym that Kid Lavigne used when he trained for his famous fifteen-round go with Joe Walcott.

George Engle writes in, saying that before Frank Kinns matched to box with Jack Britton at Philadelphia on September 29, and will then go on to Milwaukee and take on Eddie McGarthy for ten rounds. After that he will come East.

Young Saylor, a clever Indianapolis featherweight, is matched with Abe Attell for six rounds at one of the clubs in Pittsburg. Saylor is a very clever boy, and also a hard hitter.

BOSTON HORSE COMES THIRD

The Boston fencer Ballacella was the favorite for the steeplechase handicap at Montreal, and ridden by Johnny Lynch was rated at 6 to 5 to open, the same price high, and closed at 11 to 10. The local six-year-old went off to a very bad start, being last in the field of six, but took the jumps cleanly for the half, where he had worked up to third position. Johnny Lynch had Ballacella over the jumps to the mile with speed to burn, but the horse was a bit unsteady and nearly threw his rider after passing the mark.

At the mile and three-quarters Lynch set out after the leader, Merry Man, but Ballacella fell away, tired badly in the closing journey of two miles, and eventually finished. Time was 4.13 3-5. Merry Man, the winner, was as good as 20 to 1, and closed at 28, and his followers reaped a harvest.

Ballacella is good in spots, but has never been a consistent steeplechaser, and is a surprising race well he was backed, forcing the price to a very short one. He is now six years old, and was purchased by A. Henry Higginson of this city last year from the estate of Robert Neville, the famous Irish sportsman of Virginia.

PERELLI IS A WINNER.

Italy triumphed over Ireland at the Columbia last night, when John Perelli defeated Jack Metcalfe in a catch as catch can wrestling match as has been seen in this city for some time. Metcalfe secured the first fall in 16 minutes, Perelli won the next in 9 minutes and 10 seconds, and the deciding fall in 10 minutes and 40 seconds.

"We are not looking for any more."

PITTSBURG SIGNS STEELE.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 15.—Elmer E. Steele, a right-hand pitcher, has been bought by Pittsburg from Providence. He has had tryouts in Cincinnati and Boston, but he only too glad to get along without any left-handed pitchers," said President Dreyfuss, speaking of the new man. "We certainly are not looking for any more."

HARVARD WARRIORS QUIT MAINE WOODS

By E. V. B. PARKE.

The little outing and pre-season football practice of the Harvard gridiron warriors is almost at an end. To-morrow morning, bright and early, twenty-four husky and healthy looking candidates for the big Crimson eleven, arrive in Boston on board the steamship Camden from Rockland, Maine, after having spent two weeks at the camp of Dr. S. H. Blodgett, of Boston, and Lincoln, at Frazier's Island, absorbing, inhaling and otherwise devouring the new rules, preparatory for the regular Fall practice which begins next Monday at Soldiers Field.

Without doubt they will be a healthy-looking set of individuals, for they have spent the past two weeks in one glorious round of outdoor life working several hours each morning on the much-belated football rules of the season of 1910, and swimming, playing baseball, tennis, canoeing and engaging in other kind of sport, in the afternoon.

In addition to these various occupations which are conducive to good health, the Harvard huddles have received the most tender care in what they grabbed to satisfy the cravings of the inner man, for they doubtless had cravings in their wild outdoor life and strenuous existence.

Taking the Kidney Cure.

It must be known that Dr. Blodgett, who is a graduate of Harvard along back sometime in the eighties, is also an expert on kidney troubles, and as the aspirants for gridiron glory are often troubled with intestinal ailments when they first return to college, it was thought advisable by Coach Haughton to feed the men the same food as would be given to patients troubled with kidney ills, thus perchance avoiding these ills and indispositions which attack the men at the start. This plan was adopted and the men are flourishing like weeds.

By the way, doctors allege that foods containing a large amount of carbohydrates, whose chief proteids or fats are most beneficial to persons in the predicament of those in question. Hence, it is a safe bet that there is not an ounce of carbohydrates in the good old State of Maine by this time.

It was rumored that an advance guard preceded the Harvard warriors to the Pine Tree State, and spent several weeks washing all of the carbohydrates in sight, although being obtained in fact to feed an army for several months. But of course this was barely sufficient to keep such giants as the Harvard football players alive for more than two weeks and now Maine is dry on carbohydrates.

After a two-days' rest, the whole squad will be seen in action again, next Monday, on Soldiers Field, which has been going through a process of pruning, grass cutting, rolling, etc., in preparation for the return of the Pride of Harvard.

Unearthed New Plays.

During the stay of the team down Maine way, Head Coach Houghton and his assistants, Charley Daly, Crawford Hudgen, Leo Leary, former captain "Hooks" Burr, Reggie Brown and George Waterbury took turns in going to Frazier's Island and giving the candidates a little instruction and explanation of the new rules.

Anyhow the fellows will come back (for they are of the species that DO come back) with their heads crammed full of the new game, and lots of neat little plays, which will let loose on their opponents on the gridiron this Fall.

Other attendes of the team who were taken along on the trip and who will once again reach civilization with the Harvard boys to-morrow morning are "Jimmy" Fallon, of rubbing fame at Harvard; "Shamrock," otherwise known by the more dignified title of James A. Ryan, caretaker of the players' shoes and other wearing apparel; and "Tom" O'Toole, the official outfitter of the team. Coach H. R. Sprague was with the men during the stay in Maine and will also return to-morrow.

CRACK STEPPERS AT FRANKLIN SPEEDWAY

The Dorchester Driving Club has an attractive racing card arranged for the Saturday matinee at the Franklin Field Speedway. A number of the club's crack steppers will make their first start since the inauguration of the Fall series of races. There are eleven races down for decision and the entries are as follows:

Class A, Trot—Dandy, Robert.
Class B, Trot—Jack, S.
Class C, Trot—Jack S., Harry L.
Class D, Trot—Baron Patch, Bonnie Patchen.
Class E, Trot and Pace—Carl G., Cascade.
Class F, Pace—Cracker Boy, Almarilla.
Class G, Pace—Ace Bee, Edith R.
Class H, Pace—Harry Direct, Cora.
Class I, Pace—Rosemary Kremlin, Gladys M.
Class J, Pace—Glenloun Pessie, Chandler Wilkes.
Class K, Pace—Wilkins, Idaho.

COACH FITZPATRICK NOW AT PRINCETON

Keene Fitzpatrick of Natick, one of the greatest athletic trainers in the world, and whose friends are legion in Boston, and famous as physical director at the University of Michigan, took hold of the Princeton football eleven to-day.

Thirty men are in the first Tiger football squad, under the direction of Head Coach W. W. Roper. The assistant coaches upon the field were Harold Short, G. Browne and F. Waller, all former famous wearers of the orange and black. The opening practice was very light.

ARMY HAS 110 FOOTBALL MEN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 13.—In answer to Head Coach Nelligh's call for football candidates, 110 men have reported on the field in togs for practice. This is the largest squad that has come out at the beginning of the season in years. Pullen's place at tackle and Chamberlain's position at full are the only places to be filled.

The Army has ample matter to select from. Devore, who played sub to Pullen, and Homer who also played good tackle last year, have reported. Three men, augmented by some husky looking chaps from the class, should make the fight for the place one of interest this year. Suries has gone out, and will try for Chamberlain's place at full back.

Hicks, Franke and Wood, veterans of last year, have come out for the end places; Purnell and Weir, with a new man, Houston, for guards; Hyatt and Keys for the quarter position. Dean Hardwood and Brown are again in togs and anxious to fill their old half back places.

As heretofore, the Army coaching will be done by Army men, and Head Coach H. M. Nelly is well reinforced with such men as Captain Beacham, Lieutenant Phillips, captain of the West Point 1908 eleven; Lieutenant Dan Pullen, last year at Tech; Lieutenant Greche, Army star half back of 1908; Lieutenant T. W. Harmond, 1909 Army end, and Lieutenant Zell, Lieutenant Hillwell, Lieutenant Cooper and others of football fame stationed here, who will render assistance with the team.

HORSE NOTES and SPEEDWAY

Ed Bither will take Muck Mack, 2:08, to Montreal, and start him in the free-for-all trot, the last week of September.

* * *

Jack Dorey, of the Fellsway Driving Club, is the presiding judge at the Woonsocket races this week.

Colorado E., 2:06¾, certainly drove those eligibles in the Horse World Futurity race, at Syracuse, out of the race with a vengeance. As the result of the race Colorado E. took down $4,428, and Eva Rollin and Emily Ellen divided up a jackpot of $2,952, as second and third money.

* * *

The victory of Billy Burke in the $10,000 Empire State stake for 2:14 trotters came as a great surprise. Thirty men and 30 horses put in the best of shape, was thought to have the race cinched. Burke could not negotiate the heavy track. Had there been speculation the wonderful would have gone down with a heavy thud.

* * *

The Woonsocket races are providing some good sport considering the light fields and if requires a pretty nifty bit of work to pick the winners.

The bay pacer, Harry K. Thaw, after banging around the half-mile circuit for a couple of years, has finally landed a race at Wheeling, taking a mark of 2:12. This does not alter the fact that the owner should have been fined at least $250 for making his pacer carry such a title.

* * *

Tommy Murphy certainly wanted none of Colorado Billy with Native Belle. He took to the woods with rapidity.

* * *

The Cohasset horse show is reported to have shown a profit of $1,000, which is well, for the hospital aided is a very fine institution, and if it too had the amount could not have been doubled.

* * *

Bob Proctor of Readville, takes Bon Vivant, 2:04¾, to Columbus, where he is entered in the Kentucky Stock Farm Futurity, value $6,000. Bob also takes to the Buckeye capital, the trotter Alida, and the pacing mare Nellie Tempte.

* * *

Fred Sanborn of the Fellsway Driving Club has been out upon the road with Fred C. 2:11¼, and Billy J., 2:27½, as a matched pair, and as a team they certainly look the real goods.

* * *

Andy Welch is again at Readville and already busy upon the plans for next year. He will attend the race meet at Detroit. Andy has been out enjoying the aviation meet at Atlantic and is an enthusiast over the contests of the air.

* * *

Jack Crabtree does not feel inclined to the idea that his old trotting mare, Bracegirdle, 2:09¾, will accomplish anything very wonderful for Hunter Moody.

* * *

One of the richest jokes of the present season's racing was the departure of Dusty Rhodes from Hill's Grove, and sending the pacer St. Patrick, 2:14¾, against The Abbe, 2:04, at Syracuse.

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

GUESS I'LL TRY THAT HOSS THAT brother Taft is still happy. Pittsburg won the 1909 championship, too.

Straight Tips: Just a word in regard to a letter, of a Brockton lightweight champion aspirant, posing a challenge to Willard of Nelson. I have never done any professional boxing, and I would like to try one bout with it. I am not the one to brand him. I believe in giving all the boys a chance, and do not want to be the one to condemn any man, looking for a bout. I will gladly meet this winner for one bout a side bet, before any club that binds it worth while signing for a bout. I am 24 years old, weigh 147 pounds, and can easily make the lightweight limit. If arrangements can be made please let me know through your columns.
Fitchburg. THOMAS CAREY.
That's what I call a nice little call. Nobody can ever accuse Tom of being swell-headed. If he and the club who thinks he can whip Wolgast and Nelson ever have a little mussing up party, me for the Fitchburg boy.

Straight Tips: In a four-hand game of crib-bage A plays a 29, B plays a 6, makes 15 for 2; C plays a 3, makes 18; D plays a 4, makes 22 for run of three. A plays a 6, makes 28 for run of four.

It won't go, he knocks. A plays a 3, makes 31 for 2. C also claims a run of four, but it claims he has not got a run with his last card.
J. T. DRINKWATER.
New Bedford.

Nothing doing for C. His own first three intervenes and spoils the sequence.

GIVES UP LEAVE TO COACH MIDDIES

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 15.—Captain Clay of the Naval Academy football team has returned to Annapolis and is out helping the fourth-class squad. In order to be on hand early, Clay gave up about two-thirds of his leave. Three former captains of the Academy team have been ordered to the Naval Academy. These are Sonie, 1901; Howard, 1907, and Meier, 1909. Howard and Meier will be on the regular coaching staff, and Sonie will probably be asked to take charge of the fourth-class team.

Straight Tips: Please settle a bet. Who is the champion indoor golfer of the world.
Lynn. SAMUEL.
Why, Sam, that "Gawlf is a great game. It is played with a bawl made of concrete, with ribs on, and a bundle of sticks. The more sticks you have the better you play gawlf. You wear a dress like a bagpiper, but you leave the bagpipe home on the shelf. You may need it to make a new dress and a new bundle of sticks next day. You take the bawl between the middle finger and the thumb of the left hand, thus. You brush up a little pile of dirt with the right hand, thus. Then you place the bawl upon the pile, thus. You stand thus, and upon the count you strike the pile. You tear on half the earth. Then, placing yourself thus, you strike once more. Having torn up the other half of the earth, on the third strike there is nothing left to strike but the bawl. You hit the bawl. And if you find the bawl the same day you win the game." (Somebody just told me "bogey" is an imaginary record for the course, fixed by the authority as the number of strokes in which the game should be completed.)

Straight Tips: A, B, C, D and E playing draw poker, jackpots. A puts to dealer's open, B, C and D stay and E raises. A stays for raise and announces that he has not openers, but said it have one anyhow. B has only openers, claims the pot opened. C claims the right to take his money, as he has openers on it. D was not properly opened until it reached D, and that he has the right to draw from E. Time stating. What about it?
Dorchester.

All the money stays in the pot, but A's hand is dead. C's only remedy is to invoke Hoyle's rule compelling A to put up another pot equal in value to the one he opened by mistake. Poker players, however, rarely use this penalty, although I think they should.

Straight Tips: Seeing Young Burns wants to wrestle me, I will be willing to meet him if he weighs under 120 pounds. He didn't say anything about his weight in your paper Monday. Here is his chance. He can find me by addressing No. 70, Norwood Press Club, Norwood, Mass.
MARTIN ROCK.
128-Pound Champion of America.
Norwood.

Straight Tips: Will you inform me through your column if Jeffries and Johnson ever fought, if so, when and how many times? Who is the present champion? Who is the probable one for 1909?
ANNIE'S FAN.

Guess Taft wasn't a wise one to take out his vacation out that way. If Beverly didn't hear anything about the Jeffries-Johnson fight it must have passed up a little thing like that Maine landslide, so

JEFFRIES ON EVE OF A BREAKDOWN

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 14.—Jeffries is near a complete breakdown, according to reports current here to-day. The big fighter has never recovered from his defeat at Reno, and his friends fear that he will have to retire to a sanitarium and have a complete rest.

Although Jeffries' condition has not been openly discussed, the report that he is broken in health and a nervous wreck does not come as a surprise to many of his friends.

FORTY CANDIDATES AT MALDEN HIGH

WALTHAM HIGH TO BATTLE PROVIDENCE

Waltham High plays its first football game of the season Saturday, when the crimson boys from the Watch City tackle the Providence Technical team. It will give the visitors a chance to see what the new game means and what plays are possible to Harry Dame, the Waltham coach, has had his men working out for some time and has them in pretty good shape.

YALE SQUAD IN LINEUP TO-DAY

LAKEVILLE, Ct., Sept. 15.—The Yale football squad starts its first practice to-day. There are fifteen candidates here, but none of the veterans has yet reported. The last year substitutes here include Bowman, Campbell, Bronson, McDavitt and Pendleton. Captain Daly has arrived and has taken charge of the squad, which has been in charge of Trainer John Mack and Manager Carroll Binks for two days. Head Coach Ted Coy who has been detained at Litchfield by the illness of his mother, arrives to-day.

George Townsend Adee, '95, will be the first graduate coach to arrive. He has sent word to expect him Friday. Kilpatrick and rush, will be here this afternoon, and Quarterback Howe will come Friday. They will be Captain Daly's executive lieutenants all the season.

COACH HOBBS SIZES UP AMHERST SQUAD

AMHERST, Sept. 15.—Amherst College early football practice is in full swing. Nine men have returned a week early, at the call of Captain Campbell and Coach Henry Hobbs, the Yale star. Of the veterans besides Campbell, fullback, were Malden, end; Sibley, tackle; Steele, end and half; Roberts, end, and Crooks, who was injured in the Brown game last year and so kept from the team. Cary, from the second team, and Connelly and Browne, end and backs, on the freshman team, were also out. Besides these men, those who will return are Prickett, all-New England centre; Gaither and Willitts, guard; Pitts, quarter; Hibbard, end, and Miles, half. With these nine and the members from last year's freshman team, a good season is in sight for under the able coaching of Henry Hobbs, who is counted on to get out some of the Yale spirit into the play.

This Is Woman's Age

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

SITTING in an elevated train, directly beside two well-dressed and clean-shaven men, a lady overheard a portion of their conversation.

One man said to his friend: "You look a bit down-in-the-mouth; what is the matter with you?" The friend replied: "I am down-in-the-mouth and down in the heart; you know how hard I have been working to get a nice little home for my wife and myself. Well, I got it. I have her settled very comfortably, and comfortably, so it seems to me. The moment I am through with my work I go home to her.

"Of course I am ofttimes obliged to work late. I go home tired and glad to find the shelter of my home, but I find my wife either in tears or on the verge of tears. She complains of being so very lonely, she does not know people for days are so long, and when I leave her in the morning it is with the feeling that I have put her in prison instead of in a happy home. I am worried to death about it, and I don't know what to do."

Books and art, used in the right way, will keep a woman happy and contented.

The man went off, the train at this point in the conversation and they were observers they had left an unknown sympathetic friend behind. The lady lived alone, without relatives or near friends, and was dependent upon her own exertions for a livelihood. She was a refined and sensitive woman, yet she did not suffer from loneliness or self-pity, and it was difficult for her to feel much sympathy for the beloved wife of a good man dwelling in a comfortable home and not obliged to worry over bills.

Hundreds of Such Wives.

In talking with another friend regarding the matter, she said:

"I am confident that there are hundreds of such wives in the land—women who make kind-hearted men wretched by their failure to appreciate what is done for them, or to make an effort toward self-entertainment.

"Think of all the things a woman, situated as this woman evidently is, might do to fill her hours pleasantly. There is the beautifying of her home, for instance. "One woman of my acquaintance, whose husband travels for months at a time, and leaves her entirely alone both day and evening, began to experiment along the line of home decoration. She found the study so fascinating, and the work so easy, and so inexpensive, that it resulted in her making her home a bower of beauty. It became the centre for people with artistic tastes and gave her woman's best happiness, the pride and pleasure of her husband in his home."

There are innumerable other things a woman can do in these days to pass her time agreeably and advantageously. Libraries supply the best books of the world at small cost. She can read and store her mind with the treasures of human thought. She can fit herself to converse wealthy and understandingly on any topic—history, biography, literature or art, as she may choose to select her reading matter. Then, there are the languages to be studied, and music and art.

What One Woman Did

One dissatisfied woman, who had spent twenty years in finding fault with life because it did not give her what she wanted, suddenly made up her mind to study drawing. That was only three years ago. She is now doing most creditable work, besides being thoroughly happy, and making her husband so, with her contentment and cheerfulness. She is already able to beautify her home with efforts of her own, and, instead of wishing the long day would pass, she wishes each day were twice as long.

It is the greatest mistake in the world for a woman to wait for other people to entertain her, or to wait for her husband to entertain her.

"I came not to be ministered unto, but to minister," should be the motto of every woman. Think of yourself as the one who has something to bestow. Take a mental stock of your possessions; and if you have nothing to bestow, GET IT! Enrich your mind; acquire accomplishments. In the rising parlance of the day, "Get busy."

Life was never so rich with opportunities for women as it is to-day. It is a shameful thing for any woman to say that she is lonely or that she does not know what to do with herself.

The Busy, Cheerful Woman

The idle, complaining woman will never find people anxious to entertain her. The busy, cheerful, occupied woman will find everybody at her beck and call. No man can remain in love with a woman who is forever leaning upon him and expecting him to provide entertainment for her. One of the surest ways to keep a man in love is to show him how capable you are of entertaining yourself and him at the same time.

It is not necessary that you should talk to a man continually about what you are doing; but if you are occupied, and interested in your occupations, you will, quite unconsciously to yourself perhaps, become entertaining. You will know how to talk and to listen far better than the idle, unoccupied woman.

Give and you shall receive.

Dancing Is Healthful

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A YOUNG man has just written me the most doleful letter, in which he complains that his sweetheart is fond of dancing. "I have never learned to dance," he says, "and don't you think that if she really loved me she would give up dancing for my sake?"

No, young man, I do not in the least see why she should give up dancing as long as you have two feet and can learn to dance yourself.

Half an hour's practice every evening for a week and you would be able to trip it with the best of them.

Your sweetheart will teach you. She will be only too happy to have you learn.

Dancing is healthful and delightful exercise if not carried to excess. Have you ever watched the little girls of the South and West Ends dance to the music of the street pianos?

Some of them dance most beautifully, and I dare say many a future Isadora Duncan and Anna Pavlowa are at present pirouetting to the humble strains of the street music. Dancing in overheated rooms, with all the windows closed and the dust and germs rising in clouds from the floor, is not healthful exercise, but just the reverse.

The Dress With a Train.

When I was a debutante my pride and glory was to wear a dress with a train.

I had a white lace dress which was the joy of my soul, and I would wear it to a dance, though my mother warned me that it would be torn to pieces.

It was; and as I swept over its torn flounces I made up my mind never to wear a long dress again to a dance. A dress that escapes the floor is necessary for your own comfort as well as that of the other dancers.

Don't you know the look of agony that crosses a man's face when he realizes that he has stepped a lady's gown half off her?

Graceful dancing is a charming accomplishment. Don't rush about the room like a frantic teetotum; move rhythmically and gracefully. Some girls hop all over the place, while others sway like flowers driven by the wind.

When a man who can't dance falls in love with a girl who can, the best thing for him to do is to put both his best feet forward and learn without more ado.

I can quite appreciate that it must be disturbing to watch the girl you love floating about the room in another man's arms, while you cool your heels against the wall.

Learn to Dance Yourself.

At the same time it is not fair to ask her to give up dancing simply because you have never learned to dance yourself.

A girl who dances well is always in great demand, and if your sweetheart dances well and you do not want other men to monopolize her, you must learn to dance yourself.

A girl wrote the other day asking me if I thought it any harm for a girl to dance with a man to whom she had not been introduced?

I most certainly do think a girl makes a very great mistake in dancing with a man whom she knows nothing about.

To approach her at all in such circumstances is impertinent, but I doubt if he would do so did he not receive a slight encouragement.

A girl may not acknowledge that has encouraged a man to speak to her, but it takes very little to encourage some men.

Just a glance of the eyes, a half smile, or even a conscious look will do it. If you don't know any men, dance with other girls, but don't allow strange men the privilege of putting their arms around your waist and dancing with you. And be very careful about the places you go to when you dance.

Never take an intoxicating drink in a ballroom; your own youthful spirits are all the stimulant you want to make your feet trip lightly over the floor.

Convalescence

THE clear west wind is blowing past,
The tall, white clouds are sailing fast
The sun's abroad, the sun is high.
O Mary, lay my bed between
The chestnut shadows cool and green.
That I may watch them and the sky.

Put near me, I shall need it soon,
The tired woman's endless boon
Of clear white linen needlecraft.
And all the armory complete
Of basket with its work-tools neat,
O'er which we've often talked and laughed.

How many clouds of dread and care
Blow by and leave a shining air,
Over that well-filled, work-basket.
Some woman's friendly countenance,
And busy needle's restless dance,
Will charm away all cark and fret.

O, I shall soon be well again,
After those darkened days of pain
In this grass shade beneath the sky.
See, a blue butterfly flits pass
And like an elfin dark is cast
A green, zigzagging dragoon fly.

O poplars hush me, heart and brain,
With rushing sounds, like falling rain
With waving spires a-whispering!
And when I've rested, finding there
My long white seam of linen fair,
I shall be glad, awakening.

Telling His Dad About the Only Girl

By Kennett Harris

His father tried in vain to obtain a picture of the future daughter-in-law from the description furnished by his son.

THE Old Gentleman settled himself comfortably in his well-broken leather chair, after previously pinching his cigar and cautiously mineral water within easy reach. He did this with great deliberation and calmness, finally crossing one plump leg over the other and unbuttoning the two lower buttons of his waistcoat.

"Now, go ahead, Bill," he said. "Wait a moment. Have a cigar."

"I'll smoke my pipe, sir," said the young man, who strongly resembled him. In turn, he settled himself in his chair and made a protracted business of filling and lighting his black briar.

"All set?" inquired the Old Gentleman at last.

"All set, sir," replied Bill. He puffed steadily at his pipe.

"Well?"

"I guess I covered the ground pretty thoroughly in my letter."

"Oh, so, you didn't," said the Old Gentleman. "That's just what you didn't do, my son. You covered three sheets of note paper pretty thoroughly, but the only thing I could get out of it was that you had met a girl you thought you wanted to marry."

"Thought," echoed Bill.

"That's what I gathered," said the Old Gentleman, calmly. "You do think so, don't you?"

"I'm going to marry her," declared Bill, very positively indeed.

Unimportant Little Detail

"Oh!" said the Old Gentleman. "I thought you said something about getting my consent."

"Of course, I want to get your consent, sir," said the young man.

"But if you don't you'll manage to rub along without it. Is that about the size of it, son?"

Bill looked embarrassed. "I know that the minute you see her, you'll approve," he hedged. "I knew that all along. All you've got to do is just to see her, sir. She's about the ——"

"Don't blush, Bill," said the Old Gentleman. "Go right ahead. That's what I want, to know what she is. I'll try to help you out a little. In the first place, has she got any money?"

"I'm sure I don't know," replied the young man. "It was very careless of me, but I neglected asking her."

"Naturally, an unimportant little detail like that," said the Old Gentleman, ironically.

"To be frank with you, I don't think she's got a cent," said Bill.

"Well, if a woman has every other desirable attribute, one can sometimes afford to dispense with money," said the Old Gentleman, "particularly if one's father has scads of it."

"See here, Dad," remonstrated Bill.

"Oh, I know you didn't count on that," said the Old Gentleman. "You're just that kind of a chump. She is beautiful as a dream, isn't she?"

"She's a mighty good-looking girl," said Bill, rather sulkily.

"Tall?"

"Not particularly."

"Short?"

"She's just about right. She's not too short and not too tall."

"H-m," commented the Old Gentleman. "How about her nose, now—Grecian, Roman or snub? Or have you noticed?"

"It's a very nice kind of a nose," said Bill.

"What color eyes?"

"Blue."

Some Red Hair Pretty

"Does that mean red hair?"

"No, sir; not on your life, replied Bill, indignantly.

"Calm yourself," urged the Old Gentleman. "Some red hair is pretty. I suppose I'm boring you with my questions, but I wanted to get an idea of what my future daughter-in-law was like. Medium height, nice nose and blue eyes. Is she inclined to plumpness, or has she a slender form?"

"It's just about right," said Bill. "If I could see her——" began the Old Gentleman.

"That's what I want you to do," said Bill, eagerly. "I propose——"

"If I could see her, I could punch a better description of her on a railroad ticket than the one you're giving me," continued the Old Gentleman. "Is she one of these highly educated young women?"

"Not too highly educated," said Bill "Just educated enough."

"I see. How about accomplishments?"

"She plays," answered Bill, "and sings."

"Divinely, of course?"

"Well, I like to listen to her."

"Do you think she could get up at five in the morning and do a week's washing by noon?"

"I don't think she'll ever have to," said Bill.

"Any other accomplishments?"

"I think so, but I haven't paid any particular attention to them. What you want to do is to see her, dad."

"Given to athletics?"

"Not excessively."

"Not sickly, I hope?"

"You wouldn't think so, if you saw her."

"Amiable disposition?"

Bill seemed a little at fault. "Well, not so amiable you'd want to throw things at her," he replied. "Just about amiable enough."

"Is she seriously inclined, or disposed to be giddy?"

"Just an Average Girl."

"Just about right. She can be serious when there's any need of it, and she can be as giddy as the next one when she takes a notion. She's not silly, if that's what you mean. And she ain't soulful."

"Just an average sort of a girl, I imagine," said the Old Gentleman. "Well, that's about all I could expect."

Bill got red in the face. "An average sort of a girl!" he exclaimed. "Well, say! Average! I never saw a girl in my life that could come within a mile of her, and I've seen some that were supposed to have considerable class. She's got 'em all skinned. If anybody can show me a girl one-third of 1 per cent. of what Bessie is I can tell him that he's got a prize, and no phoney jewelry at that. She's a wonder; that's what she is. How she ever managed to put up with a dub like me keeps me guessing. Father, you've got the biggest surprise of your life in store for you if you've got the impression that she's an average girl. I tell you there's not another girl in the world like her. I had the sense to realize that as soon as we were introduced."

"That's all right, Bill," said the Old Gentleman, wearily. "But I wish you could give me some idea of what she is like."

"Good heavens, sir!" exclaimed the son. "Haven't I been telling you all the evening?"

To-day's Best Story

THE champion shot of the Duckpond Rifle Club was boasting of his prowess at the miniature range.

"What is more," said he, "I'll bet drinks round that I can get six balls with six shots."

"Done," said one of the company. "You won't do it."

The champion took up his rifle, and his first shot was a lovely one clean through the centre of the bull. He rapidly fired the other five shots, carefully missing the target each time.

When the card was examined only the one hole through the bullseye was discovered.

"You've lost," exclaimed the other. "You've scored five beautiful misses and only one bull!"

"Not a bit of it," said the champion calmly. "All the five shots went through the first hole."

FOR THE BUST

A new method of home treatment for the development of the bust, originated by a famous physician who used it with great success in a large practice, can now be obtained in this city. Sorrow is for only one thing—to increase the bust, and it does not affect other parts of the body. It is so uniformly successful that the local agents are instructed to sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it is not successful.

There is no massaging, no steaming, no rubber appliances, nothing but a scientific treatment that stimulates the natural growth of the bosom and gives an increase of from three to six inches in a few weeks. Claude didn't mean to strike the policeman. He thought it was Desmond he was soaking. But there's no use explaining that to the cop. He might as well tell it to Sweeney.

So now poor Innocent Claude Eclaire must languish in a prison cell for twenty long years. The years seem longer when your are in prison; at least, so we have been told.

Can this be true? Desperate Desmond, the deepest-dyed villain that ever smoked a cigarette, repents of his past misdeeds and would help the man he has wronged? Maybe so, but we're from Missouri.

Well, well! it begins to look as if Desmond was on the level after all. If he wasn't, why would he take the trouble to dope the guard? Can it be that we have misjudged him? We shall see.

Did you honestly believe that Desmond was trying to do the square thing? We didn't. We were only kidding you along. We knew that guy was crooked the minute we laid eyes on him.

Desmond wasn't satisfied to have Claude in prison. He wanted him killed. That's why he pulled off that jonny jail delivery, so the guard would shoot Claude when he tried to escape. Don't miss those next pics.

A TAILOR, who was defendant in court, seemed much cast down when brought up for trial.

"What's the trouble?" whispered his counsel, observing his client's distress as he surveyed the jurymen, and wishing to offer him a little kindly encouragement.

"It looks pretty bad for me," said the defendant, "unless some steps are taken to dismiss that jury and get in a new lot. There ain't a man amongst the whole lot of 'em but what owes me money for clothes."

Alias Jimmy Valentine

By JOHN A. MOROSO

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

CHAPTER XXVI.—(Continued)

"WHAT are you going to do?"

"Pave him with my shirt."

"Will it work?"

"Look at these, Red," Jimmy exclaimed, as he pulled his scrapbooks on his old friend of the bad days. "Can he beat around those? Here I was in a distant town the night of the Springfield job. Here is a picture of me at the banquet that Bill fixed up for me with the double negative. There is no longer a scar on my left wrist and—look here!"

"I'm Ready," Said Jimmy

Jimmy put the thin, dimy, wax thumb pieces on his fingers.

"My measurements, even, are different, Red," he explained further. "The one greatest refuge of the crook is mine. I was never Jimmy Valentine, I tell you. I have been Lee Randall all my life. I have been waiting for Doyle three years, and now I am ready. I've got to use the tools of a crook to beat him, but I am justified—by God, I know I am!"

Red pulled out his watch.

"We've got three-quarters of an hour, Jimmy," he said. "Let's beat it."

"No," replied Jimmy, serious and half absent-mindedly, as he relapsed into the lingo of his old days. "I'm going to stick. Pipe me. I'm going to make Doyle sneak out of here ashamed of himself."

CHAPTER XXVII.

A LONG, low whistle sounded outside the bank.

"It's Bill Avery," whispered Red. The faithful watchman hurried from the room, to return in a second with Bill, very much excited.

"He's in town and on his way here, Jimmy," cried Bill. My stepson tipped me off 'em, but what owes me money for clothes." just in time. Beat it, for the love of God. He'll clamp to you in a few minutes. Grab some of the cash and go."

"Sit down," commanded Jimmy coolly.

Billy, very red with excitement and fear, did as ordered.

"Look here, Bill—Red—we've been on the level for three years," began Jimmy. "We are not going to start the other way again. If we begin to run from Doyle it will be a long chase—one that will end in our being landed. Our very flight will prove us guilty. I am going to see this thing through."

Jimmy paused and seemed to be trying to control his emotion.

"Fellows," he said, choking down a lump in his throat. "My whole life is at stake now. I'm going to a interim tomorrow if I don't go to jail. Miss Lane wants me—never mind what has happened in the past—and she is going to stick to me through thick and thin.

"I can't run away. I've got to stay here. Red, you stay in easy call, please. Bill, you get out as quick as you can and don't let Doyle see you leaving, if you can help it. He will remember you. I don't think he will recall Red."

Bill took his orders meekly and Red lingered.

"Ask Mr. Lane if I can see him for a moment, Red," said Jimmy. "You'll find him out in the bank somewhere. He intended to wait for me and then we'd all go home together, with the children and Miss Rose."

Lane Proves a Good Friend

Mr. Lane was quickly found.

"I want to ask you a favor, and one that means a great deal to me, Mr. Lane," began Jimmy, when the president of the bank and his prospective father-in-law was seated beside his desk.

"Anything that I can do, I shall do gladly," was the reply. "It isn't money, is it, Lee?"

"No, sir."

"Well?"

"I want you to forget that you ever heard of me being in prison, or ever saw me at Albany," said Jimmy. "I want to ask you to forget that you ever knew me by any other name than Lee Randall."

"I only know you by that name," replied the bank president. "Tell me what is the trouble."

"You know I have been honest, whatever may have happened before I came here to take a place with you," resumed Jimmy. "There is a detective coming here in a few minutes and he will ask you questions about me."

"A detective!"

"Yes, and a merciless one."

"I will remember nothing," Mr. Lane said, "if he asks any questions I shall refer him to you. I am satisfied with my cashier, so are the directors. I am a very busy man and I will not have time to be pumped by any detective."

"Fine!" exclaimed Jimmy. "That is all I need. I can do the rest."

He threw his arm with his quickly as possible, Lee," advised Mr. Lane. "Rose and I and the two children will wait for you. The youngsters are still fascinated with the vault."

"I have only to put away the cash for the night and dispose of the detective," Jimmy replied.

There were on Jimmy's desk, as he spoke, two long trays piled high with the daily cash balance of the bank—money that he was to see safely stowed away before he closed for the day.

Mr. Lane left him and went to the front of the bank, closing the cashier's door behind him.

Jimmy looked at his watch.

It was four o'clock.

There was the sound of voices in the bank.

Mr. Lane re-entered the room. He was followed by Doyle.

"Mr. Randall," said the president, "this is a detective who wants to ask me questions about you that I feel you should answer yourself."

"Indeed!" queried Jimmy. "What is his name?"

"Doyle," said Mr. Lane.

"Glad to know you, Mr. Doyle," said Jimmy, rising and in perfect self-possession.

Mr. Lane started for the door.

"I have no interest in the conversation, I am sure, Mr. Randall," was the reply as Mr. Lane departed.

Doyle had taken a seat in front of Jimmy's desk.

The three years had added a little flesh to him, but he was the same Doyle in every other way. He still looked the bloodhound.

"Well, Mr. Doyle," asked Jimmy.

"In pretty sweet, eh Jimmy?" asked Doyle.

"Jimmy?" repeated the cashier, raising his eyebrows.

"I didn't expect to find you here, Jimmy," said Doyle. "I thought you would duck when you got my telegram."

"Oh, you sent that message?"

"Yes."

"What was your idea?"

The detective chuckled, with a sneer.

"Oh, you don't understand, eh? Just got the old boy, stalling for you? You're soft with him, eh?" Doyle chortled.

"Exactly, what do you mean?" demanded Jimmy.

"Don't come any of that on me," snapped Doyle, his temper rising. "I don't like to take you from a soft place; but you're wanted in Mississippi."

"May I ask why do you think I am?" the cashier asked, coolly.

"Why, my old friend Jimmy Valentine."

Smart Set Coming Home from Beach And Mountain

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

With all the fashionables scattered to the four winds there is little doing in the smart set circles save the goings and comings of the smart ones and the entertaining of home parties and occasional luncheon and dinner parties. Mr. and Mrs. Lurz Anderson, who are still in the Phillipines, where they went in July are planning to return to Weld, their fine estate in Jamaica Plain, early in November. # RULE CHANGES DISCUSSED BY A. A. A. BOARD

By J. C. KERRISON.

Among the subjects taken up at the meeting of the General Rules Committee of the Manufacturers' Contest Association were the following: That the decision of the Technical Committee of the American Automobile Association be final in guiding the eligibility of any car to enter contests under the rules of the A. A. A.; that the importer in stock car and semi-stock events be compelled to race on the same basis as the American manufacturer; that amateur drivers competing in track or road races be classified into professional drivers and those who assume standing.

Other matters considered were the Amount to be charged to promoters for entry fees, the amount reporting in track events of one mile, the duties of the chief assistant, at least thirty minutes before the first race is scheduled, an effort to enlist the interest of the United States Signal Corps in the matter of wireless service for timing races, that a paid technical committee be placed at the disposal of the A. A. A. Contest Board next year.

Whether or not the so-called demountable wheels will do not involve a change of wheel bearings or that portion of the hub carrying the bearings, but will be made the same as demountable rims in all other locations, will be submitted to a referendum at large by a mail vote, as will the proposition to reduce the minimum weight limit in the stock classes alone.

All photos of racing cars were considered, most of them having been suggested by experiences in the administration of the regulations governing the contests. Great enthusiasm and keen interest were shown in the meeting by everyone in general. The recommendations mainly submitted do not become rules until adopted by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, after which they will be incorporated in the regulations to govern competitions in 1911 and 1912.

When Louis A. Disbrow and Glenn H. Curtiss battle for the aviation prize purse at the New York State Fair at Syracuse, September 12 to 17, it will be the first meeting of a motor car and aeroplane in actual competition against a time record. In the coming event Disbrow will drive the National car with which he won some races at the Brighton Beach Motordrome recently.

CITY COWS CAN'T EAT UNCLE SAM'S GRASS

If the city of Boston doesn't keep its cows off the government's land at Deer Island steps will be taken by the War Department to see that it does. Word was received at City Hall today from that department stating that a number of cows which supplies milk to residents at Deer Island was in the habit of strolling on the government land at Deer Island and eating up Uncle Sam's grass. If the cows are not kept off the land they will be forced to pay rent to the government.

Traders on the bull side of the market are working to the belief that National City, First National and Chase national bank interests in New York are lending support to the manipulative operations now in progress, while it is known that those who control the bulk of securities in the Street are not selling. Mr. Hill says there ought to be a national convention for the consideration of the subject of the conservation of common sense. The conservation of land and water and coal and iron has been fully talked over, but common sense has been neglected most shamefully. He sees no reason for the public that has seized upon the business community and has no patience with the fright obtaining in financial and stock circles. Men fear to engage in new enterprises, for because some one has said "boo" to them and scared them out of their wits.

If the action of the English bankers has not ruined Cotton it will be to hurry the export of cotton so as to get the bills accepted abroad before October 31. # DIAMOND SPECIALS!

FOR THIS WEEK ONLY

Diamonds in our shipments from Europe vary in size, also color and brilliancy. The shipment that is offered this week contains several diamonds that weigh from one-quarter of a carat to two carats each. They are cut "spread" and look to weigh more. On the finger they would easily be taken for diamonds costing $200 per carat or more. The color is blue-white and very brilliant. Remember, these diamonds are put on sale today. Persons calling without delay will have the first choice of size and color. After this week we cannot guarantee delivery until the next lot arrives, and there is no telling at that time will be, as fewer of these diamonds are being found every day and the price is steadily advancing. We guarantee to refund purchase money if at any time rings can be duplicated elsewhere for less than 50 per cent more than our price.

All sizes from ¼ carat to 2 carats each. Any style—ladies' or men's settings.

Here is a partial list of this week's "diamond specials":

The purchaser of any one of these Rings will have the privilege of keeping it ten days for comparison and appraisal and then returning it for the full amount in cash if desired.

Where Is the Great Machinery of the Future?

It Is in the Brains of Millions of Children That Have Just Begun a Year's Work in the Nation's Public Schools

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal Examiner

There is a great power locked up in the waterfalls of this country—in Niagara and others.

Millions of horsepower are locked up in the coal mines and in the forests.

Billions of wealth are hidden away in the mines and the fertile fields.

This is a rich country.

But the real power and the really great wealth of the United States are not to be found in waterfalls, mines, forests or fields.

The greatest possession of the country is THE BRAINS OF THOSE MILLIONS OF CHILDREN THAT HAVE JUST GONE BACK TO THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS. There is power, THERE is wealth—there is the whole future and hope of this nation.

One American city alone sends SEVEN HUNDRED THOUSAND CHILDREN to its public schools—other cities send their hundreds of thousands, and the whole nation sends its many millions.

The great stone and brick schools of the cities hold classes that number thousands of pupils in a single building.

The little wooden schoolhouse far off in the country, with its rough flagpole, its rough fence, and coalbox before the door, holds only a dozen children, or fewer.

Somewhere in one of those schools—some child of the city or some child from the farm—you might find the mind that is to do the great work of the United States a half a century from now.

All kinds of brains are hidden away in those childish heads. Bending over the books, listening attentively, or listlessly, there are brains and souls as far apart as the North and the South Pole, as race, temperament, heredity—ALL CAPABLE OF GOOD WORK IF OPPORTUNITY, ENVIRONMENT AND ENCOURAGEMENT BE NOT LACKING.

It is a comfort to fathers and mothers of poor children to know THAT ALL OF THOSE SCHOOL CHILDREN HAVE PRACTICALLY THE SAME CHANCE.

One child has more money than another, one has parents able to do everything for it—AND THEREFORE ABLE TO SPOIL IT.

On the whole, the child that is poor, providing the parents can give it sufficient food for a good blood supply, sufficient rest and fresh air, has the best chance.

It is not what the child gets, it is not what is given to the child, BUT WHAT IS BROUGHT OUT OF THE CHILD, that settles its chances of success.

There they sit in the long rows, millions of the children. To the careless eye they look much alike.

One of them will do the very big thing, another will do the next best thing, and another will do nothing, or worse than nothing.

Each child should be encouraged by its father and mother to remember that in this country IT HAS A CHANCE. Remind your children—without urging them on beyond their strength, without complaining of their temporary failures—that if they will TRY they have as good a chance as anybody else.

Tell them that a few years from now one of the boys studying as they are studying is destined to be the greatest man in the country. And hundreds of others are destined to be great and successful. And the difference between them will be the difference of work, and earnestness, and wise living, and obedience to good advice.

Parents should remember especially that the whole wealth of the child and the possibilities of the future are contained WITHIN THAT CHILD ITSELF.

Don't try to make your child what YOU are. Don't try to make your child come up to some ideal of your own.

Try to give your child opportunity AND THEN LET HIM DEVELOP IN HIS OWN WAY THE QUALITIES THAT ARE WITHIN HIM.

Don't burden your child with criticism, reproofs, suggestions and useless rebukes.

Above all, don't waste your time in trying to correct in your child those things which time of itself would correct. It has been truly said that children have been worried to death, punished and frightened, because they spoke indistinctly, whereas only TIME was necessary to cure them of that.

When you look at your own child, think of Abraham Lincoln, the boy almost without opportunity. His sole assets were a good brain and a stepmother intelligent and kind.

He had many defects of speech and of manner. He was ungainly, rough, uncouth from the first to the last.

When the people of the country picked him out and made him President, they found a gawky frontiersman, with big hands, big feet, rough hair, roughly clad.

But they found what is more important than refinement, neatness and charming manners—A COMPLETE MAN, UNSPOILED BY FOOLISH CRITICISM.

Young Lincoln had been allowed to develop every thought, every feeling, every power that was IN HIM. He hadn't been harassed and kept down and worried like somebody's pet dog.

Many parents make the mistake of treating their children as ONLY a pet dog should be treated.

Let your child develop, teach him by kindness only, never by blows. No child is ever struck except by a brutal parent, no blow is ever given except in anger, and no child that is struck and has its spirit broken in youth has an equal chance with the other children.

That is a great army that has just gone back to the public schools—millions upon millions of future workers, the boys that are to do the material, outside, temporary work, and the girls that are to be the mothers, to whom is entrusted the more important, THE MOST SACRED WORK of continuing the race.

The statesmen, the inventors, the poets, the thinkers, the valuable dreamers, the necessary schemers and planners of the future—they are all there sitting on the benches.

You could find the poet there, just at present with no thought more poetic than the earnest desire to escape from school.

You could find the future man of a thousand millions or more sitting there in tattered clothing, barefooted, perhaps, in the country school. You could find among the little girls one with a big forehead, and a deep back head, a quiet, earnest face—destined in the future to be the mother OF THE MAN WHOM THE WORLD NEEDS, AND TO DO HER WORK THROUGH HIM.

It is a wonderful panorama of the future, a wonderful army, that army of the school children.

What a pity that stupidity in education, dull-minded or disillusionized parents, poverty, bad food, defective environment, condemn so many to loss of the powers with which they were born.

On the whole, it is an army of encouragement and hope. ALL THE CHILDREN OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST NATION ARE AT LEAST LEARNING TO READ. There is the army that means the death of ignorance, of superstition, bigotry and selfishness in the future.

The great nation of the earth, the future United States, sits on those school benches.

Mellen's Opportunity to Serve New England

He Has Made a Good Beginning as the Master of Transportation, But—Will He Keep It Up? He Should Define His Plans and Policies.

President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has the opportunity to make himself the most popular man in New England. Will he avail himself of it?

The merger of the Boston & Maine Railroad with the New Haven road actually, if not legally, has been accomplished. With the exception of the comparatively small territory served by the Boston & Albany Railroad, the New Haven is now master of all transportation facilities in New England.

An out-and-out merger, Legislatures of Massachusetts repeatedly refused to sanction. Through the medium of the Boston Holding Company, the New Haven road has acquired practical control of its only dangerous competitor. It is well understood that the New York Central, lessee of the Boston & Albany, and the New Haven have a "gentleman's agreement" relative to the division of traffic. Therefore, the developing and upbuilding of the commercial and industrial interests of New England are practically in the hands of the New Haven Railroad.

On various occasions, when Mr. Mellen went to the Legislature seeking permission for a law which would allow him to acquire control of the Boston & Maine, he made many promises. In glowing terms he painted to the legislative committees the grand schemes which the New Haven had in mind for the improvement of railroad service in the event of the merger of the two roads under one management. There is now a practical merger of the two railroad systems. Both are under control of one management, and President Mellen is the directing genius. We look to him to keep those promises so eloquently made at the State House.

With the retirement of Lucius Tuttle from the presidency of the Boston & Maine Railroad there passes from the stage of transportation activity the last big railroad executive of the old school. Mr. Tuttle has been a great force in New England life. Although he has been granted a leave of absence for one year, it is not expected that he will return to active management of the Boston & Maine system. In the future Charles S. Mellen's will be the master hand.

Mr. Tuttle is a splendid type of New England self-reliability. There has been no luck in his rise to fame and power. It was by hard work that he ascended from the lowest to the highest round of the ladder. Forty-four years he has been railroading, and he retires at the age of sixty-four to take his first real vacation.

By nature Mr. Tuttle is conservative, and he has followed rather than gone in advance of the development of the territory in which the Boston & Maine Railroad operates. He has been content to keep abreast of the times rather than a little in advance. And he has been more careful of promoting the dividend-earning capacity of the railroad than of the comfort of the railroad's patrons.

In many respects the condition of the rolling stock of the Boston & Maine is deplorable. Many of the cars are antiquated and decidedly uncomfortable. Many of the running schedules are aggravatingly untimely. Many of the methods of the operatives are slipshod, and habit has brought on carelessness. There is room for vast improvement.

Even though merged with the New Haven, the Boston & Maine is Boston's principal outlet. A progressive policy of management could develop wonderfully all of New England's resources, including magnificent Summer resorts, fishing and game sections, commercial and industrial districts. Mr. Mellen has begun well by establishing a new and fairer schedule of milk rates and by ordering the immediate electrification of the Hoosac Tunnel.

We hope these two acts were not for the purpose of diverting attention from the announcement that a real merger of the railroad systems has been effected. We desire to give Mr. Mellen credit for the best of motives. We hope to be able to praise him for many more public-spirited acts in the future.

If he will carry out one-half the promises he has made from time to time to the Legislature, he will give New England wonderfully improved service.

He should define his plans and policies so clearly that we might know what to expect. The promise of bettering Boston & Maine ocean and service would be cheering; to get busy and really make improvements would be heartily appreciated.

A Lesson of the Election in Maine

The result of the election in Maine ought to encourage Massachusetts Democrats to adopt a platform which is worthy of the hour and equal to the needs of the people in this State, and to nominate for Governor and other State offices men who have the character and ability to win the support of voters irrespective of usual party affiliations.

If the delegates to the Democratic State Convention follow that course when they assemble in Faneuil Hall on October 6 they are likely to have the success at the polls which proves it pays any party to be honest with the people.

Moreover, the election in Maine shows that this year the American people are no longer content to have a United States Senate which represents Special Privilege alone. Judging from what has happened in Maine it is not impossible to defeat Henry Cabot Lodge for re-election to the National Senate from Massachusetts.

It is worth while to make the effort, if the Democratic or any other party in this State has at heart the best interests of the Commonwealth and its inhabitants.
